

The CHI PHI
Chakett

FEBRUARY, 1954

WHAT ABOUT THE PRESENT?

For 100 years Chi Phi has occupied a place of honor on the Franklin & Marshall campus. The history of Chi Phi is studded with illustrious names and generous benefactors: Ferris, Johnson, Ballantine, Connally, Atterbury, Calhoun, Russell, Grady, Sykes, Morrison, and many others. Their work contributed to the welfare of the nation and humanity. They gave of time and wealth to Chi Phi.

YOU ARE THEIR SUCCESSOR!

Lest You Forget

Let's talk it over

FIRST, let me say that my eyes are better and I am back in the office regularly. I wish to thank everyone for being so kind and patient with me during the eye trouble.

I made a trip to Cincinnati in November and was one of your delegates at the meeting of the National Interfraternity Conference. The other two delegates were Grand Alpha Carl Gladfelter, Alpha-Tau '33, and Dr. George W. McClure, Alpha-Chi '18, President of the Chi Phi Club of Cincinnati. Brother Gladfelter has reported on that meeting elsewhere in this issue of CHAKETT.

On Dec. 7, I visited the Alpha-Alpha Chapter at Chapel Hill, N. C. Everyone in the Fraternity would be very proud of that Chapter and its physical set-up. They have just spent $7,500 in redecorating the house and buying new furniture. They have a very fine group of boys.

While on this trip I had the pleasure of attending the party given by the Chi Phi Club of Washington, D. C. The meeting was held at the Army and Navy Club and was presided over by its president, Brother John P. Saylor, Zeta '29, who is a member of the United States House of Representatives. The arrangements for the dinner were capably handled by Brother Carl Baer, Psi '08. Brother Baer is one of the most faithful Chi Phis I know. For years he has advocated the reestablishment of the Chi Phi Club of Washington, D. C., and on that night his dreams came true. The Club petitioned for a charter, which has been granted by the Council. The secretary-treasurer of the Club is Brother Laurence S. Knappen, Alpha-Chi '20, whose address is 2512 Fort Scott Dr., Arlington, Va. They will hold luncheon meetings every second Thursday of each month, with dinner meetings in March, June, September, and December. For information about this Club, please call Brother John P. Saylor at National 8-3120, Ext. 2012. I hope all visiting Chi Phis in the District of Columbia will meet with this group whenever possible. I further hope that all members of the Chi Phi Fraternity, who live in the Washington, D. C., area, will affiliate with this Club. It is most helpful to a national Fraternity to have an active Alumni group in the capital of the United States.

From Washington I went to Charlottesville, Va., where I found the Alpha Chapter very much alive and on its toes. They had a party for me in the afternoon and a dinner that night. A large number of Alumni attended both functions, and after dinner, an excellent chapter meeting was conducted. I particularly want to pay my respects to Brother Thomas O. Trotter, Alpha of the Chapter, and to Brother Harry Frazier, Chapter Adviser, and Brother William R. Kitchen, the new Council Representative. The Fraternity at large can be very happy over the fine Chapter which now exists at the University of Virginia under the leadership of these men.

The Alumni Dues notices for 1954 reached your desks on Jan. 1 and, to date, a large number of you have responded. So far the collections are a little ahead of last year. Brother Carl Gladfelter, the Grand Alpha of the Fraternity, wrote a story for the December issue of THE CHAKETT, entitled, "Don't Turn This Page." It was a detailed report to the membership on the financial condition of the Fraternity. He called on each one of you for help in this situation. The Alumni Dues notices carried with them a letter from the Grand Delta, also calling the attention of the Alumni to the details of our Fraternity's finances. A number of you have made additional contributions beyond the $5.00 dues, and I wish to thank those of you who have been so generous with the Fraternity. Some of you have made contributions to the Chi Phi Educational Trust. These contributions are most gratefully received as they are badly needed. Some of you asked for additional information about the Trust. Those of you who contributed your dues of $5.00 have already received your annual Alumni

Dues card. Those of you who made additional contributions will receive a letter from this office especially thanking you, and those of you who made contributions to the Chi Phi Educational Trust will receive a letter of thanks and a receipt to be used in connection with your tax returns, as contributions to the Chi Phi Educational Trust are tax exempt. The Trust has been classified as an eleemosynary institution by the Department of Revenue. Those of you who asked for additional information about the Trust will receive a folder, giving the present status of the Trust, its aims, its hopes, and what it can mean to the Fraternity financially.

The Grand Alpha is visiting some of the Chapters, and I know his visit will prove a great inspiration to those who come in contact with him. I would like to ask the Chapter Advisers and Council Representatives of each Chapter to get together and visit their respective Chapters and to make a report to this office on the results of their visits.

To you undergraduates, who are the lifeblood of the Fraternity, I want to say "Thanks" for all of your kindnesses to me and for your thoughtfulness in remembering me with Christmas cards and best wishes for the New Year. I hope to see each of you sometime during this year, and it would help me a great deal if each of the Chapters would write me, giving me some idea as to when a visit from me would be most convenient.

I hope all of the Chapters are planning Zone Meetings for this year. Many good things result from these meetings and those who profit most from them seem to be those chapters acting as hosts to the Zone Meetings. This office will be glad to assist you in the holding of your Zone Meetings in any way we can. Please let us hear from you.

Respectfully submitted,

L. J. Rosser

The Interfraternity Mothers' Conference of the University of Washington has as its purpose the stimulation of scholarship among fraternities on the campus, to provide a medium for the exchange of ideas and plans among the individual Mothers' Clubs, and to further any project which contributes to the general welfare of organized men students. Annually awards are given for scholarship excellence and improvement. For the second time Beta Delta has won an award. Above, left, Bob Wanamaker, Alpha of Beta Delta, is shown admiring the cup and a permanent plaque given for highest scholarship among the fraternities with Mrs. G. S. Youatt, president of the Wives' and Mothers' Club of Chi Phi

Russell L. Guin, Alpha-Chi '17, is Grand Gamma of the Fraternity. Brother Guin knows how to raise money for chapter house financing. From 1945-50 he served as chairman of the Alpha-Chi Alumni Assn. and headed the committee which rehabilitated the Chapter and paid off its indebtedness. Brother Guin is not a next-door neighbor to the Chapter. He lives in Danville, Ill., where he is president of Interstate Printers and Publishers, Inc., publishers of school and college texts on agricultural subjects

New York Chi Phi

Club Honors

THE Chi Phi Club of New York gave a testimonial dinner on Nov. 30, in the Roof Garden of Hotel Pierre, Fifth Avenue at 61st St. The honored guest was Louis Shattuck Cates, Beta '02, chairman of the Board and director of Phelps Dodge Corp.

The dinner was planned by the late S. Stanwood Menken, Xi '90, president of the Club and chairman of the planning committee. Co-chairman was George Hoeft, Xi '49. Other committee members were Charles B. Hill, Omicron '93; Harold H. Heins, Gamma Delta '25; Paul L. Grambs, Rho '21; Lee D.

Arning, Alpha-Alpha '45; Walter L. Sorg, Tau '47; Frank W. Ford, Jr., Omicron '46; Allan B. Wallace, Jr., Zeta '41; Martin L. Scott, Omicron '25; Philip W. Raup, Sigma '20; and Omar F. Elder, Jr., Gamma '40.

Brother Menken made the following remarks at the dinner:

"Louis Shattuck Cates came into the world a barefooted boy in 1881.

"His ancestors, voyagers on the Mayflower, endowed him with grit and intelligence—and a creed of true democracy.

"He went through school and high school in the good New England way, and, with a zest for engineering, entered the Class of 1902 at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"He gave the earliest evidence of his fine judgment by joining the Beta of Chi Phi.

"Graduating, he was first employed by the National Steel & Wire Co., and then by the Boston Consolidated Copper Co.

"His acumen, plus hard work, give us the early chapters of a success story, the steps of which you younger brothers should note. Beginning as a timekeeper for his first employer, he had advanced from Foreman of Boston Consolidated to Shift Boss, Superintendent of Mines and in 1910 to General Manager of its mines and mills.

"Next he was the Engineer of Utah Copper Co., and then placed in charge of production of the Ray Consolidated Copper. There he showed his genius as the first engineer to employ the underground method of caving in on a large scale. In his nine years he treated 25,100,000 tons under the Cates Plan at $1 a ton profit.

"During this period he was made Assistant General Manager of the Great Utah Copper Co., and its railway subsidiaries. In 1922 he became Utah's General Manager. In 1923 he was vice president and transformed its plant and operation.

"In 1930 he succeeded Walter Douglas as president of Phelps Dodge & Co., with its $50,000,000 capital.

"From that day, this great company grew and grew, and its course was marked by brilliant acquisition and operations.

"He planned broadly for the future, and, the year after he became president, increased their authorized capital to $150,000,000.

"During all this time, adhering to the strict code of ethics lived up to by great predecessors—Walter Earl Dodge, James Douglas and his son, Walter Douglas, now famous, and a strong group of directors—he forged power through integrity and true standards of business conduct to rank at the top of our country's great industrialists.

"He is now chairman of the Board of his company which today has about $550,000,000 assets, 30,000 stockholders, and 15,000 employes, all of whom love and respect him.

"Others have recognized what this man has done, not only in his profession, but as a civic leader and outstanding national patriot.

"He holds many high honorary degrees and decorations and directorates, including trusteeship of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and National Industrial Conference Board.

"Ploughing ahead, through hard work, to continuing achievement, he is always a regular, jovial friend and has never lost his spirit of good fellowship. His popularity is a tradition. Perhaps that is due in part to early Chi Phi days. Anyway, we think it is, and, to show our reverence for him, we wish to present to him this slight token of our fraternal regards. The inscription reads:

"To Louis S. Cates, with admiration for his achievements as industrialist and citizen, with the fraternal regards of The Chi Phi Club of New York."

Because of the importance of the dinner, Chi Phis were instructed to ask friends to join in honoring Brother Cates. It was appropriate for the Fraternity to pay this tribute to him. He has received honorary degrees from Michigan College of Engineering and Technology; the University of Arizona; and Columbia University. He has been decorated as Commander of the Order of the Crown (Belgium); Knight of the Order of the Condor of the Andes (Bolivia); Chevalier of the Legion of Honor (France), and was awarded the William Lawrence Saunders Gold Medal in 1939 by the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. Brother Cates serves on the Board of Trustees of MIT, New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, and the National Industrial Conference. He is a director of the American Mining Congress, having served as president in 1925; the Hanover Bank, New York; Continental Insurance Co., New York; Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corp., Phelps Dodge Mercantile Co., and Phelps Dodge Refining Corp.

A large group of Chi Phis assembled to pay honor to Louis Cates

Artist

James S. Ward, Eta '51, of 84 Wakefield Dr. N.E., Atlanta, is one of 60 advanced students from all parts of the country, who attended the summer session of Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, Mich. He received a BA degree from the University of Georgia and has won several national recognitions for his art work. He will continue his studies for a Master of Fine Arts degree in design.

The Grand Alpha Reports

THE response to our plea for extra contributions on the part of the Alumni has been most encouraging. It is too early, at this writing, to give an accounting as the Alumni Dues notices were mailed on Dec. 28, 1953, but we will detail the results in the next issue of THE CHAKETT.

I would particularly like to thank those Brothers who so far have sent contributions in excess of their annual dues of $5.00, and assure them that the National Officers will make every effort to see that these extra funds are used to both bolster our working capital position and to improve the overall service of the Fraternity to the Chapters, Alumni groups, and the Alumni.

To those Brothers that have neglected to send in their annual Alumni Dues, may I again remind you that the Fraternity is dependent upon your annual dues to maintain publication of THE CHAKETT and all the other essential services. Dig out that check book and send yours along before you forget it again.

Chi Phi had three delegates at the 1953 meetings of the National Interfraternity Conference: Dr. George McClure, Alpha-Chi '18, president of the Chi Phi Club of Cincinnati; L. Z. Rosser, National Director; and Carl J. Gladfelter, Grand Alpha. The Chi Phi undergraduates present were Jim Himonas of Rutgers and Ray Harstenstine of Lehigh, both presidents of their respective campuses' Interfraternity Council.

The fraternities affirmed the principle of chapter autonomy. The Conference also adopted a new plan of organization which should facilitate its operation. One noteworthy accomplishment of the annual Conference is the bringing together of the Fraternity leaders and college and university administrators. Many splendid ideas and corrections of misunderstanding of purpose come out of the formal and informal contacts thus made.

The Chi Phi Club of New York

City honored Louis S. Cates, Beta '02, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation at a dinner on Nov. 30, 1953. The event was well attended, and three chapters, Beta, Mu, and Delta, had representatives present. The New York group meets regularly. Under the able leadership of the late S. Stanwood Menken, Xi '90, the 1953-54 program got off to a fine start. It's a rare occasion that does not find Al. Wallace, Jr., Zeta '41; Walter Sorg, Tau '47; Jack Olwine, Psi '25; Martin Scott, Omicron '25; Omar Elder, Gamma '40; Harold Heins, Gamma Delta '25; Phil Raup, Sigma '20; Paul Grambs, Rho '21, and so many others whom I don't know personally, present. Frequently 20 or more chapters are represented at one of their meetings. The death of Brother Menken means a great loss to the group.

There is nothing novel about inviting undergraduates from nearby chapters to Alumni get-togethers. Many Clubs overlook the opportunity. However, it's a wonderful way for the Alumni to keep in touch with the Fraternity and the men living its philosophy on the campuses today.

It was my pleasure to attend the Phi initiation banquet in November, on the eve of Amherst's annual Homecoming. Phi men can certainly be proud of their Chapter. The house is in excellent physical condition; the chapter officers are alert and conscientious, and the members most gracious.

Willard Thorp, Phi '20, a member of the faculty and Board of Trustees, gave the principal talk of the evening. Brother Thorp recently "retired" to teaching from a strenuous public life. He served for several years as Assistant Secretary of State. I hope the editors of THE CHAKETT will find space in the near future to print his speech. It was most thought-promoting. — CARL GLADFELTER, Grand Alpha.

Percy Craig Spencer

Spencer Heads Petroleum Institute

PERCY CRAIG SPENCER, Alpha Theta Chi '16, president of Sinclair Oil Corp., New York, was elected chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Petroleum Institute on Nov. 10 at the Institute's 33rd annual meeting in Chicago. Spencer succeeds L. S. Westcoat, president of The Pure Oil Co., Chicago. Frank M. Porter, president of Fain-Porter Drilling Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., was reelected president of the Institute. Charles S. Jones, president of Richfield Oil Corp., Los Angeles, was elected API Vice President for the Division of Transportation. He succeeds Mr. Spencer of Sinclair Oil Corp., in this position. Vice presidents reelected for another one-year term are as follows: John G. Pew, vice president of Sun Oil Co., Philadelphia, Pa., API vice president for the Division of Production; John W. Newton, vice president of Magnolia Petroleum Co., Beaumont, Texas, API vice president for the Division of Refining; Robert M. Bartlett, vice president of Gulf Oil Corp., Pittsburgh, Pa., API vice president for the Division of Marketing. B. Brewster Jennings, president of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., New York, was reelected API treasurer; and Lacey Walker, of New York, was reelected secretary and assistant treasurer.

Brother Spencer's career has been many-sided. Born in Jasper, N. Y., in 1893, he was taken to Cody, Wyo., in 1903 and he received his early education there. He edited the Cody Enterprise in 1912-13 and then went to the University to study law. He was awarded his LL.B. in 1916. Back in Wyoming, he was secretary of the Lander Commercial Club until he joined the armed forces in 1918. Returning to civilian life, he became secretary to Francis W. Warren, Wyoming Senator, in Washington, D. C. In 1922 he went back to Wyoming and became chairman of the Republican State Central Committee at Cheyenne. He established a law office there. After five years he became general counsel for the Producers and Refiners Corp. When this company was acquired by Sinclair in 1934, he joined Sinclair's legal department. In 1946 he was made general counsel. The following year he became president of the Sinclair Refining Co., operating subsidiary of the Sinclair Oil Corp. He was made executive vice president of the Corporation in 1948 and succeeded Harry F. Sinclair as president in 1949.

In August, 1950, Brother Spencer was named to head the National Petroleum Council's Committee on Petroleum Industry Transportation. He has been a member of the Board of Directors of the American Petroleum Institute since 1949.

Brother Spencer lives on Hickory Lane, Scarsdale, N. Y.

Donald W. Murtha, Gamma Delta '28, announced his resignation as Assistant Solicitor of the U. S. Department of Labor on Dec. 1, 1953, and the opening of an office for the general practice of law at 821 Fifteenth St. N.W., Washington 5, D. C.

Bill Klisanin, Alpha Delta '52, has been transferred by his employer, The Household Finance Corp., to Chicago where he and Mrs. Klisanin are residing at 5737 N. Kenmore Avenue.

Chi Phi Club of Washington, D. C., Combines Fellowship and Contacts

IN April, 1953, a representative group of Chi Phis residing in metropolitan Washington met for dinner at the Lafayette Hotel to discuss the organization of a local Alumni Club.

In the past there have been a number of attempts to organize, but after a few meetings they failed. Brother John P. Saylor, Zeta '29, was suggested to head the new attempt. He agreed to start in that capacity if he could count on the support of the others to keep things rolling during the periods when he must be back in his Congressional District in Pennsylvania. Brother Carl A. Baer, Psi '08, with the Government's Synthetic Rubber Program, agreed to head up an activities committee to handle operating details on programs, announcements, etc., and act as the nominating committee.

On this basis the local Club held its first dinner meeting on June 24, 1953, at the Burlington Hotel to honor Brother C. Leslie Glenn, Mu '21, Grand Beta, and elect the officers: John P. Saylor, Zeta '29, MC, president; Walter W. Dawson, Psi '24, vice president; Matthew G. Jones, Chi '23, vice president; Laurence S. Knappen, Alpha-Chi '20, secretary-treasurer.

Subsequently there were luncheon meetings every month until December when the Christmas Dinner Party was held at the Army and Navy City Club. At the luncheon meetings interesting talks were given by Brothers Rear Admiral E. W. Sylvester, Beta '22; Harold M. Sylvester, Theta '28; the Rev. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, and Willmott Lewis, Jr., Omicron '49.

The party was quite a success with 35 enthusiastic members in attendance. The Fish House Punch met all expectations. Carl A. Baer, chairman of the activities committee, started the "ball rolling" and John P. Saylor followed with a few of his interesting experiences in the Pacific, whereupon Brother John L. Sullivan, Chi '21, former Secretary of the Navy, in his amusing way, demonstrated that somehow he had managed to kiss the Blarney Stone. Then Brother L. Z. Rosser, National Director of the Fraternity, in an inspirational manner, discussed Chi Phi in retrospect and the future and emphasized the importance to the National Fraternity of a strong Alumni Club in Washington, the capital of the world. At Brother Rosser's suggestion, all present signed up as the charter members of the Chi Phi Club of Washington, D. C.

Brothers Harold Sylvester and Willmott Lewis were elected to fill out the terms of Brothers Walter W. Dawson and Matt Jones as first and second vice presidents, respectively. That left the membership of activities committee: Carl A. Baer, Psi '08, chairman; Wilson Batten, Epsilon '22; Ralph Ingram, Sigma '18; Mike Rizik, Phi '46; Tom Andrews, Epsilon Delta '37; Don Murtha, Gamma Delta '28; Weston Dodson, Psi '18.

It was decided that all future meetings of the Club will be held on the second Thursday of each month, with dinners in March, June, September, and December and lunches in all the other months.

The lunches on Jan. 14 and Feb. 11, 1954, were held at the Scheherezade Restaurant, 709 18th St., N.W., at 12:45 P.M. at the price of $1.50.

As to the March meeting, there have been suggestions from time to time that the ladies be invited. If the response from the membership is sufficient to assure that the Club is ready for such a mixed dinner, it will be held at the Army and Navy Club with Fish House Punch a la Chi Phi.

A cordial invitation is extended to all Chi Phis with business taking them to Washington, D. C., if their visit coincides with the second Thursday of the month, to join us at lunch or dinner.

L. C. Campbell

L. C. CAMPBELL, Alpha Delta '15, vice president of Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, Coal Division, has been affiliated with this organization since 1927 when he joined a former subsidiary company, The Koppers Coal Company, as general superintendent. He was promoted to assistant to the vice president in 1934, and was made general manager of mines in 1941.

Brother Campbell was elected a vice president of Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates in 1943, The Koppers Coal Co., having been dissolved in 1941, when it was made the Coal Division of Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates.

He is a native of Renovo, Pa., and was graduated from the Renovo High School. He attended Perkiomen Seminary at Pennsburg, Pa., and Pennsylvania State University, State College, Pa., where he was graduated in 1915 with a degree in Mining Engineering.

His first employment was with the Rand Mining Co., a gold and silver mining organization in Nevada, where he became superintendent.

At the beginning of World War I Brother Campbell entered the officers' training camp at The Presidio in San Francisco, Cal., where he was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the Air Corps. Following the war he became general superintendent of the McKinney

Changes in Coal Industry Unequaled in History

Steel Co.'s coal mining operations in Pike County, Ky. He remained there until he joined The Koppers Coal Co.

Brother Campbell was president of the Board of Commissioners of Mount Lebanon Township, a suburb of Pittsburgh, for eight years. He is chairman, Coal Division, American Mining Congress; director, Bituminous Coal Research, Inc.; a member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the Engineers Club of Western Pennsylvania, and was vice president of the National Safety Council for two years. He is serving his second term as president of the National Coal Ass'n.

Speaking before the National Coal Ass'n's convention last October, Brother Campbell's address was excerpted for Eastern Gas and Fuel Associate:

"Someone has said that in economics the answers change every year. They have been changing in all phases of our industry since this nation was founded, but I believe that the startling changes in the coal industry are unequaled."

"The technology of the industry has reached the point where machinery has taken over both above and below ground. There is a constant progress in this respect."

MARKETS

"During the 1935-1939 period, coal's best customers were—in descending order—general manufacturing, the railroads, the retail market, the steel industry and electric utilities. Comparing 1952 with the previous period, we find that the amount used by the steel industry has increased more than 100 per cent; the amount used by the electric utilities increased by an amazing 173 per cent. On the debit side of the ledger, the amount used for manufacturing declined slightly; the amount used by the retail market declined 12 per cent—a surprisingly small amount in view of the keen competition of other fuels; and, finally, the amount of coal used by the railroads declined 55 per cent. There is currently a whispering of atomic energy making further inroads, but the opinion of those who ought to know is that atomic energy is not a serious threat to other fuels in our industrial life in the foreseeable future."

ELECTRIC POWER

"At present, coal is responsible for the production of almost half of all our electric power, and the electric utilities require well over 100 million tons of bituminous coal each year. Estimates for future needs range as high as 350 million tons annually by 1975. There are valid reasons why coal is and will remain the most important source of electric power.

"Petroleum and natural gas—which together now account for less than one-fourth of our electric power—form less than 2 per cent of our total fuel reserves. It is unrealistic to believe that the fuel from these limited reserves can be used over a long period for the heavy industrial work of firing utility boilers. Before many years have passed, our entire output of gas and oil will have to be reserved for the uses for which these fuels are best suited.

"Water power, of course, will remain an important source of electricity, but even full development of all our river systems would provide us roughly with only 5 per cent of our total energy needs. Coal alone is able to provide us with the bulk of our power."

STEEL

"Just as our expanding economy demands more and more electricity, so it demands more and more steel. Steel production now tops 100 million tons per year. It is predicted that it will rise within the next twenty-five years to about 150 million tons annually. Since a ton of steel requires roughly a ton of coal in its manufacture, the steel industry's coal consumption will rise comparatively with these figures."

GENERAL MANUFACTURING

"The third of coal's markets in respect to annual tonnage is general manufacturing which consumed over 100 million tons in 1952. This market has not shown the amazing increases of the steel and electric industries, but manufacturers, realizing that bituminous burned with modern equipment is efficient and economical, make it their main source of power."

RAILROADS

"With respect to the railroad fuel market, you will hear from others the latest reports on the progress in the development of a coal-fired gas turbine locomotive, which the research engineers tell us will outperform the Diesel. But even if this new coal gas turbine lives up to expectation and eventually replaces oil-fired

Diesels on the rails, it will not mean a big increase in the amount of coal which we will be called upon to supply for railroad fuel. The coal requirements of the turbine will be much less than the conventional type steam locomotive.

"With respect to the retail fuel market, we are paying more attention to it today industrywise than ever before. . . .

"The program of market promotion which we have been carrying on for some years is now being intensified. . . .

"Strengthening coal's position market-wise means not only finding ways and means for obtaining for coal a large share of the total fuel market; it means obtaining for coal a price that will have a reasonable profit after the costs of production and taxes have been subtracted. Profit increases investment and creates more employment. It makes men take chances and work harder to do a better job than their competitors. Profitless coal sales help no one in the long run."

RESEARCH

"What we are doing in research is another important aspect of an economic pattern for coal. We have done much more as an industry than we are generally given credit for. But we are doing nowhere near enough. Our research program should be expanded.

"Through research and inventive genius we have developed and put to use mining machines far and away ahead of any elsewhere in the world; machines that have enabled our miners to get out coal with greater speed and with almost no back breaking labor. The big gains in mine safety, the improved processes in coal preparation and coal handling all have their roots in research and engineering. Research in the field of coal utilization and coal chemistry is opening new vistas for coal and, in the long run, new markets."

NEW ERA FOR COAL

"Coal maintains and will improve its position as a basic raw material in our industry. Its place for raising steam in the power industry appears reasonably secure. Its place in the metallurgical field appears even more secure and the demand for that purpose should expand almost ton per ton with the increased production of steel. Coal has only touched the chemical field, which but a few years ago was thought of as a field of by-products from the coking of coal.

"The fact is that coal remains America's principal energy source; that the industry is not in retreat, in spite of the fact that during the past fifteen years in particular great changes have occurred in the pattern of coal consumption. It is only recently that these changes assumed a recognizable form. Those who recognize it now know that the coal industry is in transition from one era in its history to be an even more important era."

Sue Branan Says "Thank You"

TO ALL CHI PHIS:

AS we close the chapter of 1953, and begin on the new one for 1954, 'tis well for each to examine each day of the past chapter to see just what it has meant to us.

For me it has been the year when my greatest dream has come true.

Ever since my association with the Eta Delta Chapter (which was April, 1934) as house mother, my one dream was that someday I could go to The Congress and meet the men who had made it possible for so great an Order to exist.

In January, 1953, I made a vow I was going to Atlanta. So instead of spending the remembrances I always get from my "boys," God bless them, I put it away for that one trip. But as the time got closer, my finances were not growing like my hopes. So one night I had a dream; next day I put it to work. I selected the names of 70 boys equally divided among each pledge class and wrote to each asking if they felt they could make a donation of $1.00 towards my trip to the Congress. The result—I heard from 62 and the amount was $314.00 AND I WENT TO THE CONGRESS. 'Twas the happiest day of my life. Now I want to thank not only the Officers of the National Fraternity, but every Chi Phi for the greatest honor I could ever hope to have. By taking me in the formal meeting and allowing me to meet each as one member, I am ever so grateful and may the New Year bring to each and every one a bigger and better fraternity is my most heartfelt wish.

Brother Davis Elected Epsilon Delta Adviser

GEORGE DAVIS was born in 1915 at Ontario, Ore., where he completed grade school and high school. He entered college at Oregon State in 1935, and received his Bachelor of Science degree in 1939. He joined the Oregon State staff in 1941, and in 1942 he received his Master of Science degree. Both of his degrees were in Agriculture Economics.

During the years of 1942-'46, George, like many of our faculty members, served with the armed forces. He enlisted with the United States Marine Corps, 2nd. armored amphibious battalion. While serving with them he was in the invasion of Iwo Jima and Saipan. When he was honorably discharged in 1946 he was the senior 1st. Lieutenant of the U. S. Marines.

In 1945 George was married to Rowena Blake. He now has one son, Scott, who is seven years old.

After leaving the Marines he returned to O.S.C. and served until 1949, when he took a sabbatical leave at the University of Chicago to work on his Doctorate.

During his undergraduate years at O.S.C. George was a member of Epsilon Delta. While with the house he was very active, holding the position of Delta for two years. He also served as Beta and Zeta. George was also initiated into Alpha Zeta, which is the national agricultural honorary.

At the present he is an associate professor of Agricultural Economics, and is carrying on marketing research for the Agricultural Experiment Station. He is also active in the Marine Corps reserve unit and is now a Major.—RODNEY CANUTT, Zeta.

"All-American Alumnus" Dies in Atlanta

THE death of Dr. Frank Kells Boland, Eta '97, on Armistice Day, 1953, recalls his service to Chi Phi. The Chronicles of Chi Phi do not refer to Frank Boland as "Doctor." He had been out of Emory Medical School only seven years when he took over the duties of Grand Zeta of Chi Phi. Dr. Theodore B. Appel, the author of The Chronicles, refers to his work on the Yearbook, the annual record of business and literary efforts in Chi Phi. It was in 1910 at the end of his service as Grand Zeta that Brother Boland suggested that much of the material appearing in the Yearbook would be more suitable to a quarterly magazine. Brother Boland had done his share in providing interesting material about the Southern Order of Chi Phi, about his own Chapter, Eta, and he must have suffered when the work he had done for a new issue of the Register was lost by the express company in transit to New York. Later Dr. Boland continued his Chi Phi work as president of the Atlanta Alumni Assn.

Dr. Boland's service to Emory and to humanity was told in The Emory Alumnus for December.

Dr. Frank Kells Boland, Eta '97, '00M, noted Atlanta surgeon, died early on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, leaving behind him an unsurpassed and unique record of service to Emory University and to humanity. He was 78 at the time of his death.

So prominent as a surgeon that he won numerous national, regional, state, and local honors in his profession, Dr. Boland forever will have an important place in the history of Emory for his manifold and distinguished contributions to the University. These were so extensive as to be almost unbelievable.

He was a volunteer member of the faculty of the Emory School of Medicine and three of its predecessor schools for 50 years. As a student and teacher he was associated with the medical school and four of its five predecessor schools.

He was a member of the faculty of the Emory School of Dentistry and two of its three predecessor institutions for 42 years. Thus he gave 92 man-years of service to two present Emory professional schools and five predecessor institutions.

He was on hand when each of the three mergers and the one split in the 99-year history of the School of Medicine took place and when the two mergers in the 66-year history of the School of Dentistry came about. Himself a historian, he saw more history made in the University's medical-science divisions than did any other person and much of it he helped make.

He was a founder of both the national general Alumni Assn. of Emory

University and the Medical Alumni Assn. He was the first man to hold the vice presidency of the general Alumni Assn. and later became its president. And he was the first president of the medical Alumni Assn.

He was an alumni trustee of the University for three years and president of the Atlanta Emory Club for one, and was class councilman for the Class of 1900M. He held, in short, every high office that his fellow alumni and his classmates could bestow on him.

He was the chief of surgical service, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, with the Army's Base Hospital No. 43 (Emory Medical Unit I) in World War I.

He delivered the Emory Commencement address on May 30, 1942.

"Dr. Frank" is the only man known to the Alumnus who has held the national presidencies of four different alumni organizations. Besides heading the two Emory associations, general and medical, he served as national president of the University of Georgia Alumni Society and of the Atlanta Boys' High School Alumni Assn. Furthermore, he was permanent president of the University of Georgia Class of 1897, with which he was graduated with second honors from that institution with the A.B. degree.

He was, in short, an all-time, all-American alumnus.

To Alumnus Boland, more than to any other individual, is due credit for the establishment of the name and fame of Georgia's Dr. Crawford W. Long as the discoverer and first user of anesthesia in surgery. To this labor of love he devoted years of research, writing, and speaking.

Dr. Frank Kells Boland

At the time of his death, Dr. Boland had as his associates in the practice of surgery in Atlanta his two sons, Dr. Frank Kells Boland, Jr., Eta '27, '31M and Dr. Joseph H. Boland, Eta '29, '33M. The unusual parallels in the careers of the oldest Dr. Boland and his sons are interesting.

Each attended Boys' High in Atlanta. Each then took his college work at the University of Georgia, where each lettered in major sports. In fact, Dr. Boland, Sr., who won his "G" in baseball, was the first Georgia letterman to have a son who also received a varsity letter; the sons won theirs in football.

Each of the three Bolands then took his medical degree at Emory. And all three became members of Phi Beta Kappa and of Chi Phi Fraternity.

The father of Dr. Boland, the late Dr. Kells Hewitt Boland '87M, was, like his son and grandsons, an Atlanta surgeon. He was graduated from old Southern Medical College, one of the forerunner institutions to the Emory medical school and the only one of the predecessor medical schools with which Dr. Frank Boland, Sr., was never connected.

Born in Indianapolis, Ind., on May 3, 1875, of Atlanta parents, "Dr. Frank" was reared in Atlanta and completed his work at Boys' High in 1893. After receiving his A.B. from the University of Georgia four years later, he enrolled in Atlanta Medical College, which had been founded in 1854.

The following year, 1898, Atlanta Medical College was merged with Southern Medical College, his father's alma mater, which had been organized in 1878. The consolidated institutions took the name "Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons," and it was from this college that Dr. Boland received his M.D. in 1900.

Upon being awarded his degree Alumnus Boland interned at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, for six months, then served as resident surgeon at St. Joseph's Hospital, also in Baltimore, for nearly three years.

He returned to Atlanta in 1903 to begin a practice which was to continue for a half-century. In the same year he joined the teaching staff of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, thus starting an association which also was to last until his death.

In 1905, a dispute among the faculty of the College of Physicians and Surgeons resulted in the resignation of Dr. W. S. Kendrick, the dean of the college, and Dr. Edward G. Jones, its proctor (registrar). These two physicians, along with several other prominent doctors who had been members of the "P. and S." faculty, decided to form a new medical college. This they did within a matter of days, naming the institution the Atlanta School of Medicine.

In an effort to obtain the approval of accrediting agencies, which they did not have, the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Atlanta School of Medicine patched up their differences and reunited in 1913 under the historic name, "Atlanta Medical College." Dr. Boland, who was a member of the Kendrick-Jones group and who had taught at the Atlanta School of Medicine throughout its existence, remained a member of the faculty of the consolidated institution.

Atlanta Medical found the going rough and thus, when the first steps were taken in 1914 to establish in Atlanta the new Emory University, the medical college advanced the possibility of its becoming the medical "department" of Emory. This offer was accepted, and Atlanta Medical became Emory's School of Medicine on June 28, 1915.

With the medical school there came to Emory, as a faculty member, Dr. Frank Boland, who turned out to be one of the most valuable gains made by Emory in the transaction. Since 1915 he has held a succession of titles in the school, usually those of professor of surgery or clinical professor of surgery, the latter being his title at the time of his death. For the past two decades he has generally served in a consultative capacity, but for three years during World War II he regularly taught classes, since many medical instructors were away in military service at that time.

In the first World War Dr. Boland was chief surgeon of Emory Medical Unit I, which was mobilized at Camp Gordon, Georgia, in 1917 and demobilized at the same camp in 1919. Composed almost entirely of Atlanta and Georgia men and women, the unit was known as Base Hospital No. 43 and was stationed for much of the war in Blois, France. It was made up of 35 doctors, most of them Emory-connected, 100 nurses and 200 enlisted men.

Dr. and Mrs. Boland were hosts to Emory Unit I at the latest of its periodic reunions, which was held on Nov. 4, 1951, in the Bolands' Atlanta home. "Dr. Frank" was mustered out with the rank of lieutenant colonel; he later, in 1930-39, held the rank of full colonel in the Army's Medical Reserve.

The chief of medicine in Emory Unit I was Dr. Cyrus W. Strickler, Sr. '97M, who died only last July. Dr. Strickler was a member of the medical school faculty for 47 years and a professor emeritus for seven.

Dr. Boland's service to the dental school which is now Emory's was almost as long as his service to the medical school which is now Emory's. It began in 1907, when he joined the faculty of the Atlanta Dental College as professor of anatomy. He continued to hold the same post when Atlanta Dental, founded in 1892, was merged in 1917 with Southern Dental College, founded in 1887.

The surgeon occupied the chair of anatomy in the new Atlanta-Southern Dental College until 1919, when he was made professor of physiology, a position he held until 1949. Meanwhile Atlanta-Southern in 1944 transferred its properties and resources to Emory and became the University's School of Dentistry.

Seldom has any university known a more active and able worker in alumni affairs than Dr. Boland has been. When the alumni of the Emory medical school and its component institutions gathered in the Physiology Building on the University campus on June 6, 1921, to form what is now the Medical Alumni Assn. of Emory University, it was he who addressed the group and urged its members to organize. The physicians then established the association and elected him as its first president, an office which he held in 1921-22.

It was not until nearly two years later—on Feb. 23, 1923—that the alumni of all divisions of Emory met in Atlanta's Chamber of Commerce Cafe to organize the national general Alumni Assn. of Emory University. Elected as the first officers of the newly formed association were Judge John S. Candler '80-'83G-24H, next-to-last president of Emory College Alumni Assn., president; Dr. Boland, vice president, and James A. Drombrowski '23, secretary. "Dr. Frank" also was a member of the first executive committee of the Alumni Association and of the first (five-member) Loyalty Fund committee.

The Atlanta alumni elected him president of their organization for 1930-31. In 1937, the alumni body as a whole elected him one of the three members it is empowered to name to the University's Board of Trustees; there he served a three-year term ending in 1940.

Dr. Boland served as vice president of the national Alumni Assn. in 1924-25 and as first vice president in 1940-41. Then, in 1941, he became the 12th man elected to the presidency of the Association; he was reelected the following year, and thus held this office from 1941 to 1943. His predecessor was Granger Hansell '23-'24L, his successor Walter T. Candler '07.

When Alumni Boland was elected to his first term as Association president, the symbol of this office was a Coca-Cola bottle, which the alumni chief used as a gavel. At the end of his first year in the presidency, Dr. Boland presented to the Association a wooden gavel in memory of the late Dr. Stewart R. Roberts '00M-'02, whom he called Emory's "ideal alumnus." From 1942 to the present this gavel, made from a tree which grew on Dr. Roberts' farm, has been used each Alumni Day by the president of the Association. A medical school classmate of "Dr. Frank," Dr. Roberts was author of the Emory Creed.

Until this year Dr. Boland held the distinction of being the only person to have headed both Emory's national general Alumni Assn. and its Medical Alumni Assn. This record was tied in June when Dr. Carter Smith '24-'26M, Atlanta internist who served as president of the medical association in 1947-48, was installed as president of the general association.

In 1942, too, Dr. Boland accepted the invitation to deliver the first Emory Commencement address of World War II. On this occasion he challenged the graduating classes to "give victorious war service of which Emory and the world will be proud."

As councilman of his medical class, Alumnus Boland arranged and presided over the 50th-anniversary reunion of '00M in 1950.

Down through the years Dr. Boland gave generously of his time not only to Emory but to his two other alma maters, the University of Georgia and Atlanta Boys' High. He was president of the Georgia Alumni Society in 1927-28, received a citation from that society in 1940 for "distinguished service," served as president of Georgia's Atlanta alumni in 1925-26, was awarded an honorary doctor of science degree by Georgia in 1926, and held the presidency of the Boys' High Alumni Association in 1935.

Alumnus Boland's chief hobby was history and historical research. As a historian and as a surgeon, he early became interested in the fact that others besides Dr. Crawford W. Long were being credited with being the first to use anesthetics in surgical operations. He established to his own satisfaction that Dr. Long administered the first anesthetic in Jefferson, Ga., on Mar. 30, 1842, and that he continuously employed ether as an anesthetic until his death in 1878.

For decades, by writing and speaking, he sought with great though not total success to convince the nation of Dr. Long's prior claims. In 1950 his book, The First Anesthetic, the Story of Crawford Long, was published by the University of Georgia Press.

Dr. Boland was president of the Crawford Long Memorial Assn. that placed Dr. Long's statue in the Capitol in Washington. He had the satisfaction of seeing Dr. Long's portrait hung in the office of the surgeon-general of the United States and a memorial stamp issued in his honor. Shortly before "Dr. Frank's" death it was announced that a museum would be built in Jefferson, on the site where Dr. Long first used ether as an anesthetic.

All told, more than 75 articles and addresses by Alumnus Boland were published in professional, historical, and other journals and magazines. He was a member of the editorial board of American Surgeon.

"Dr. Frank" won a national name

AS TIME goes by and the years, sometimes many, are added to one's span of life, there naturally is left in our minds the recollection of what those years have meant to us. Memories sometimes can be of unpleasant events, and those are better forgotten. One phase of my own life which can be classed as pleasant and memorable has been my 68 years as a Chi Phi.

Three months after I entered Franklin and Marshall College, in September, 1885, I was accepted by Zeta Chapter, and it was only a short time later that I had an important part in the initiation of Theodore B. Appel, who was destined in later years to become one of the most illustrious of Chi Phis. He served as Grand Alpha and Grand Epsilon with unusual distinction—in fact he represented every tradition of Chi Phi to the highest degree. My classmate in High School and College, I knew him well. At our graduation Class Day exercises I made the Presentation Oration, and my present to Appel was a bib, because he was the youngest member of the class. I left Lancaster in 1902 but returned for visits frequently afterwards. Shortly before Dr. Appel's death I was with him on one of my visits, and, with his usual equanimity and courage, he casually told me that he had only a short time to live. Two weeks later I received word of his passing away.

One of the things I think important in our fraternity life is the wearing of our pin. We are Chi Phis for life and not just for the undergraduate years. Mine has been worn constantly and has been the means of making contacts with Brothers several times. To illustrate, I will tell of just one of these. As an Internal Revenue Agent I was auditing the tax return of a large corporation in Vermont. Three of the office force, who happened to be Chi Phis, saw my pin and, of course, the inevitable occurred. They drove me over to Hanover, N. H., to see a football game between Dartmouth and Cornell. While there we visited Chi Chapter.

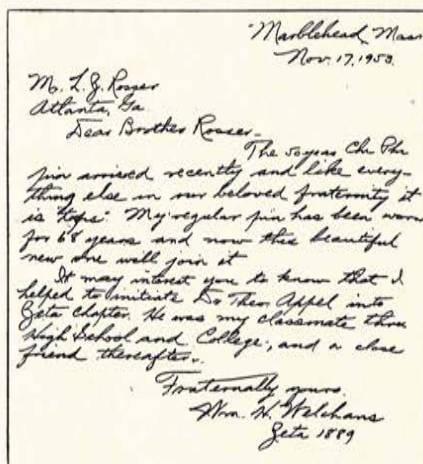

Another incident which stands out in my memory concerns three

68 Years in Chi Phi

by William H. Welchans
Zeta '89

William H. Welchans, Zeta '89, recalls in the letter below the initiation of Theodore Appel, author of "The Chronicles of Chi Phi"

Chi Phis—a professor, a guilty party, and the innocent victim. This day in class a Chi Phi sitting behind me rattled a bunch of keys. Just as the professor looked in our direction, I had a broad grin on my face. He picked me as the culprit, and ordered me to leave the room, which I did. Then the aftermath—we were required to apologize when punished before we could get back to classes. The professor was Dr. Joseph H. Dubbs, one of the founders of Zeta Chapter, and one of the most lovable of men. When I found him alone and approached, before I could say a word he exclaimed "That's all right—thats' all right"! So I never did apologize. The guilty party was Brother John T. Ankeny.

Of course to one who, through lack of opportunity, has not been active in Chi Phi matters as an Alumnus, the very fact of being a member all these years is a great satisfaction. And I would be remiss if I didn't pay tribute to the fine institution which is the home of Zeta Chapter. I am referring to Franklin and Marshall College where Zeta has been located for one hundred years. When I started my college career F. & M. had one hundred students. Today there are over one thousand who are receiving an education fitting them to be well-rounded men. Franklin and Marshall was founded and exists on loyalty and religion. It will never be subjected to an investigation for subversion, I am sure.

Chi Alumni Honor Sampson

H. LeBaron Sampson '00 was honored Dec. 29 at a dinner held at the Harvard Club of Boston by 16 officers, directors, and members of the Chi Chapter Assn., the Alumni Corporation of Chi Phi Fraternity at Dartmouth. In presenting a fraternity emblem, Arthur M. Wyman '08, president of the Corporation, spoke of Sampson's having been one of the founders of the Chapter in 1902, having been a prime mover in the purchase of the original house, and the building of the present house in 1929. His latest contribution to the welfare of the Chapter was arranging the extinguishing of a long-standing indebtedness of the Chapter which now leaves the property unencumbered except for a moderate mortgage.

Also present were: E. M. Dow '01, G. A. Sampson '01, C. LeR. Barton '05, H. R. Lane '07, G. F. Thurber '11, E. F. McQuesten '16, W. Fielding '20, R. M. Barnes '21, C. H. Jones, Jr. '23, H. D. Nordstrand '26, E. L. Magenis '28, L. W. Shirley '29, J. Wallace '35, C. T. Main, II, '38, A. B. Mansfield '40, all of Chi.—H. DONALD NORDSTRAND, Secretary of Chi Chapter Assn.

EDWARD SMITH Heads

First National Bank of Atlanta

THE election of Edward D. Smith, Gamma '32, as president of the First National Bank of Atlanta was announced on Jan. 12 by James D. Robinson, Jr., Gamma '25, chairman of the Board of the institution. At the same time, according to Mr. Robinson's statement issued following the First National's annual stockholders meeting, R. Clyde Williams was named vice chairman. All other officers and directors were reelected.

Mr. Smith, prominent attorney and civic leader, was born in Birmingham, Ala., March 9, 1912. He moved with his parents to Atlanta in 1919, and received his education at Marist College and Boys High School, later graduating from Emory University from which he received an A.B. degree in 1932. He graduated from Harvard Law School in 1935, and immediately became associated in the practice of law with the Atlanta law firm of Smith, Kilpatrick, Cody, Rogers & McClatchey, which firm was founded by the late Marion Smith and Harold Hirsch, outstanding Georgia lawyers. He has continued as a member of this firm until the present time.

In addition to his law practice, Mr. Smith has taken an active part in civic affairs and charities, having served as general chairman of the Greater Atlanta Community Chest for 1951 and 1952. He is currently serving as the first president of the Metropolitan Atlanta Community Services, Inc., which represents a reorganization—which he was instrumental in bringing about—of the former activities and functions of the Metropolitan Atlanta Community Planning Council and the Greater Atlanta Community Chest.

He is also president of the Lawyer's Club of Atlanta, past president of Atlanta Chi Phi Alumni Ass'n., past president of the Executives Association of Atlanta, past president of the Piedmont Driving Club and a member of the Capital City Club, Atlanta Bar Ass'n., Georgia Bar Ass'n., American Bar Ass'n., American Law Institute, and of the Georgia State Board of Bar Examiners, to which he was appointed by the Supreme Court of Georgia. He is an Episcopalian and a communicant of St. Phillips Cathedral.

During World War II, from 1943 to 1945, Mr. Smith served as a Lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve, having been air combat intelligence officer with composite Squadron 90, based on an aircraft carrier CVE 87, "The Steamer Bay." In this capacity he was active in the invasion of the Philippines in January, 1945; in the invasion of Iwo Jima in February, 1945; and in the capture of Okinawa in April, 1945.

Mr. Smith, who resides at 3540 Woodhaven Road, N.W., is married, his wife being the former Laura Maddox, and has two daughters, Laura Maddox Smith and Florida Graves Smith. He is the son of the late E. D. Smith, Sr., who was formerly engaged in the general practice of law in Birmingham, but upon moving to Atlanta became general solicitor of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., of which he later was named general counsel and a vice president and director.

Mr. Robinson and other directors and officers of the First National expressed great satisfaction and pleasure in the election of Edward D. Smith as the First National's president. "We are indeed fortunate," said Mr. Robinson, "in having Edward D. Smith as president of our institution.

Edward D. Smith

His recognized ability will add to the strength of our management, and his already demonstrated interest in civic affairs will increase our resolution and efforts in the upbuilding of our city and section. At the same time we will continue to have the benefit of Mr. Williams' experience and ability in banking, as vice chairman of our Board."

Mr. Smith, while expressing his regret in leaving his law firm, stated that he is looking forward to his new association with the First National and to opportunities to serve the bank, its customers and the people in the entire Southeast, in which area the First National already has such extensive business. Said Mr. Smith, "I am indeed honored in my selection by the Board of Directors as president of the First National Bank of Atlanta, which is one of the outstanding banking institutions not only of the South, but of the entire country."

The First National Bank of Atlanta, founded in 1865, is now in its 89th year and is among the 100 largest financial institutions in the United States. Its total resources on Dec. 31, 1953, were $376,359,071.87.

Thomas F. Fleming, Γ '05, H '08, has recently been elected president of Citizens Bank, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

S. STANWOOD MENKEN, Xi '90, had wonderful plans for the New York Chi Phi Club this year. As president he wanted the young men in today's Chapters to know their older Brothers who have made their places in today's world. Brother Menken knew the young men in college. He visited Chapters when it was possible. His memory and his work for the National Fraternity spanned the years. In the April, 1948, number of THE CHAKETT he recalled "Great Chi Phis." He had known many of them from his first convention at Baltimore in 1889. He was chairman of the New York Congress in 1936. His term on the New York Chi Phi Club Board did not expire until the end of 1954. Fellow Board members referred to him as "The Grand Old Man of Chi Phi."

At 83 Brother Menken was imaginative, vigorous, and active in his profession, law. His death, on Jan. 7, was due to pneumonia. His loss is felt not only by his son, Arthur Menken, an attaché at the American Embassy in Rome who was here when his father died, and his sister, Mrs. George H. Andrews, of New York, but by all of the Chi Phis who had known him. Paul L. Grambs, Rho '21, who had served on the testimonial dinner committee with him, expressed that loss when he said, "We have lost our most loyal and enthusiastic leader."

The New York Herald Tribune printed this account of Brother Menken:

"Mr. Menken, who lived at 3 E. 77th St., practiced law in New York for 60 years and was still active up to the time of his recent illness. His office was at 44 Wall St.

"Mr. Menken was born on July 29, 1870, in Memphis, Tenn., and was a descendant of Haym Salomon, the Philadelphia banker who helped to finance the American Revolution. He attended City College here, Cornell University, and received a law degree from Columbia University in 1894.

"Reform politics and national preparedness were the two civic fields in which Mr. Menken was most concerned. He ran for office only once, being defeated as candidate for City Court Judge in 1896. He was energetic and outspoken in virtually all city, state and national political campaigns of his time, and in 1909 he organized a group which was instrumental in the election of John A. Dix, a Democrat, as Governor. In general, though, he was a Republican.

"In 1895 he organized the Hall of Records Association which enrolled 10,000 members and brought sufficient pressure to force the city to spend $7,000,000 to build the present Hall of Records at 35 Chambers St.

"While serving with the American Relief Committee with former President Herbert Hoover in 1914, Mr. Menken saw British soldiers training with broomsticks instead of rifles. He came home and organized the National Security League in 1915 and stumped the country with Theodore Roosevelt for the cause of American preparedness.

"In this activity, Mr. Menken got into an awkward situation. The Hearst newspapers were being accused of pro-Germanism and were busy trying to get testimonials from leading citizens in an effort to offset any unpopularity. On June 18, 1918, The New York American came out with a full-page display of a 'letter' from Mr. Menken, the president of the National Security League, which praised the Hearst papers' support of preparedness.

"The effect of the 'letter' was to repudiate any National Security League speakers who had been attacking Hearst. The league executive committee immediately repudiated the Menken 'letter'. Nine days later Mr. Menken resigned as league president, saying his usefulness had been impaired by the incident.

"He complained that the 'letter' actually was only part of a written statement which he had given a Hearst reporter, after William Randolph Hearst personally had requested it from him. He accused the American of bad faith in the whole matter.

"In 1930, when he was chairman of the league, Mr. Menken resigned the post because he favored United States recognition of the Soviet Union, while his colleagues were opposed. Mr. Menken simply argued that the Soviet Union existed and to ignore it was ostrich-like.

"Before Pearl Harbor, Mr. Menken was active in the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. He was a director of the Council of Democracy and the Friends of Democracy. He was president of the New York chapter of Chi Phi Fraternity, and a member of The Pilgrims, Cornell Club, the Wall Street Club, The Creek and the New York chapter of Sons of the American Revolution.

"Mr. Menken married Miss Gretchen von Briesen in 1899. She died in 1938.

"A memorial service for Mr. Menken was held at the Unitarian Church of All Souls, Lexington Ave. and 80th St."

In writing about Chi Phis, Brother Menken concluded with words which should be repeated often: "One of the great glories of Chi Phi members was that they were men who accepted the responsibilities of life, and who gained spiritually through the contacts of the Fraternity. They unquestionably formed a brotherhood which, by simple contacts and example, helped develop character and citizenship certain of distinction in future years. As we go along, we must never overlook either the influence created by the high standards of those who have built the Fraternity, or the faithful services of many in each Chapter who recognize the value of character building in fraternity life and its contribution to democracy."

Bill Kitchin Becomes Council Representative

THIS past fall William R. Kitchin, Alpha '49, was appointed Alpha Chapter's new Council Representative. Since he and his family have moved to Charlottesville from Kentucky, Bill has been extremely active and helpful in Alpha Chapter's affairs. Brother Kitchin was instrumental in obtaining new showers for the second floor of the house, and he has been of immeasurable help in straightening out the house and kitchen account books.

While he was attending the University of Virginia, Bill was the main instigator in setting up Alpha Chapter's kitchen and dining room, which he managed so well. Besides being the first kitchen manager, Bill also held the office of Alpha of the Fraternity for one semester in 1949.

In the second World War Bill enlisted as a pilot in the United States Air Force. He is presently the plant manager of the Morton Packing Co., Crozet, Va., division.

As mentioned earlier Brother Kitchin is a family man, having married his attractive wife, Elaine, while he was still attending the University of Virginia. Bill and Elaine are now the proud parents of two lovely daughters, Daphne, who is nine years old, and Cheryl Jane, who is five.

The Kitchins are presently living at 507 Brandon Ave., in Charlottesville.—THOMAS O. TROTTER, Alpha.

Atlanta Alumni and Actives Join in Gala 7-Hour Party

IN Friday, Nov. 27, over 300 Chi Phi Alumni and their wives, active Brothers and their dates, gathered at the Piedmont Driving Club for a festive post-Thanksgiving party which began with a tea dance from 5:00 until 8:00 and, after an hour's intermission full of good food, songs, and door prizes, continued enthusiastically with more dancing until midnight. The occasion was the Atlanta Alumni Assn.'s annual celebration on the eve of the Georgia Tech-Georgia football game. Planned as a tea dance with Bill Clarke's orchestra, the party became an all-evening affair when the Gamma and Omega Chapters arranged for the music to continue from 9:00 until 12:00.

John Cherry, Omega '40, president of the Atlanta Alumni Assn., announced plans for the party well in advance and assured its success by his choice of spirited committee workers. Dick Simms, Omega '42, who was in charge of advance publicity, mailed out over 2,000 letters with the result that Brothers gathered from all over the state and some from Tennessee and Alabama. Morton Rolleston, Gamma '39, arranged for the door prizes and, with the help of Ernie Poyo, Alpha of the Gamma Chapter, led the intermission singing which included all the Chi Phi songs.

Brother John Cherry, Omega '40, president of the Atlanta Alumni Assn., was carrying on an earnest conversation when the photographer happened along

Bates Block, Gamma '40, Eta '43, immediate past president of the Atlanta Alumni Assn., found some pretty attractions at the party

Johnny Westmoreland, Jr., Gamma '44, and George Ewing, Omega '45, treasurer, handled the ticket sales and did an excellent job. But everyone agreed that the committee especially deserving of congratulations was the decoration committee composed of Rebecca Cherry, the president's wife, Dorothy and Harry Bolling, Omega '40, and Josephine and Bob Crumley, Omega '40, whose good taste and hard work gave the ballroom of the Club an atmosphere worthy of the occasion. Their theme was taken from the Georgia Tech-Georgia colors. A large buffet table at one end of the ballroom was decorated with red gladioli, black magnolia leaves, red carnations, and black candles, while a similar table at the other end of the room was decorated with yellow gladioli, yellow and white chrysanthemums, and gold candles. Small tables for seated groups featured either black candles and red flowers with a toy bulldog seated beneath, or gold candles and white and gold autumn flowers with baby yellow jackets sitting on the leaves.

All this, with subdued lighting, attractive wives, beautiful dates and good music, made a perfect setting for the further growth of old friendships in Chi Phi. It was no surprise when for young and old alike the party cheerfully sustained itself for the full seven hours and then ended only reluctantly when the aliens in the band packed to leave.—TOM SHELTON, Secretary.

Miami Chi Phi Club's past and present presidents posed for a picture at the Christmas dance. Left to right, you are looking at J. Tillman Pearson, Theta Delta '36; J. P. Simmons, Jr., Epsilon '42, Theta Delta '49; Judge George E. Holt, Alpha-Pi '25; Curtiss B. Hamilton, Theta Delta '49; Robert Sturrup, Theta Delta '50, currently president; Ralph O. Cullen, Phi '24; Harrell M. Fincher, Omega '37, outgoing president. The program for the dinner dance included singing led by George W. Kates, Theta Delta '50, and a "History of Chi Phi" presented by Edward F. Boardman, Theta Delta '36. The menu included fruit cup (with Chi Phi peaches)

THE Miami Chi Phi Club varied its usual pattern of Christmas entertainment this year and limited the annual dance to attendance by Chi Phis only. The result was a revived fraternity spirit.

Judge George E. Holt, Alpha-Pi '25, was master of ceremonies at the dinner. Brother Meldrim Thomson, Eta '08, Omega '08, who is celebrating his 50th anniversary as a Chi Phi, spoke. Mimeographed copies of Chi Phi songs were passed out and there was group singing before dancing started.

Bob Sturrup succeeded Harrell M. Fincher as president. Bob's address is 1013 duPont Bldg., Miami, Fla. Other officers are William J. Swink, Alpha-Alpha '42, Olympia Bldg., Miami; George Wright, Jr., Theta Delta '50, Shoreland Arcade Bldg., Miami, and George E. Patterson, Jr., Chi '39, 1201 Pacific Bldg., Miami.—HARRELL M. FINCHER.

Boland Dies

not only with his fight for the rights of Crawford W. Long but as a skilled surgeon. He was vice chairman of the surgical section of the American Medical Assn., a member of the board of governors of the American College of Surgeons, a fellow of the American Surgical Assn. and the American College of Surgeons, and a member of the American Assn. for Thoracic Surgery, the American Assn. for Traumatic Surgery and the Societe Internationale de Chirurgie.

He was a founder of the Southeastern Surgical Conference in 1929 and its president in 1932-33, the president in 1936 of the big Southern Medical Association and the chairman of its council, the president of the Southern Surgical Assn. in 1934, and the general chairman of the Southeastern Surgical Conference of 1939 and of the joint meeting of the Southeastern Surgical Congress and the Atlanta Graduate Medical Assembly in 1952.

His professional honors further included the presidencies of the Medical Association of Georgia, the Chattahoochee Valley Medical Assn., the Georgia Social Hygiene Council and the Fulton County Medical Society.

In 1950 he delivered at Louisiana State University the first Maes lecture. This lectureship was established in honor of Dr. Urban Maes, professor emeritus of surgery at LSU, and lectures are given annually under its auspices by a surgeon who "has contributed vastly to the progress of medical science and practice."

In June of this year the 1,000-bed Frank K. Boland Building for white males, named for the Emory leader, was dedicated at Milledgeville State Hospital. On that occasion Georgia Gov. Herman Talmadge said Alumnus Boland "has been exemplary in the medical profession as exhibiting earnest dedication always to the highest traditions of the practice of medicine and the Oath of Hippocrates."

But "Dr. Frank's" activities extended far beyond the fields of surgery, teaching, alumni leadership, and the making and writing of history. He was one of Atlanta's foremost civic leaders.

He was chairman for four years of the Atlanta American Red Cross chapter, president for the same four years of the Atlanta Historical Society, longtime president of the Atlanta chapter of the English-Speaking Union, chairman of the Atlanta Stamp Out VD campaign of 1947, chairman of the board of stewards of Trinity Methodist Church, and president of the Atlanta chapter of the International Association of Torch Clubs, an organization of professional men created "to promote free interchange of opinion among its members on subjects, civic, religious, philosophical, scientific, economic and artistic."

Dr. Boland was a founder in 1940 of the national Phi Beta Kappa Associates. He had held a national office in the Chi Phi Fraternity and served as president of its Atlanta alumni association. His memberships further included AQA, national honor medical fraternity; OAK, national collegiate honor society, and Phi Chi medical fraternity.

Besides his sons, Dr. Boland is survived by his wife, the former Miss Molly Horsley, of West Point, whom he married Apr. 25, 1905; a sister Miss Amy Boland, Atlanta, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held in Atlanta on the morning of Nov. 12, with burial following in Westview Cemetery.

Upgren Writes Book on Economics

WHEN economists shuck off all the cant of their calling and produce a book without one reference to the nature of rent, marginal utility, or the limiting factors of want gratification, the event should have the same effect in academic halls as the seven trumpets of rams' horns before Jericho.

Arthur Upgren, Kappa '20, Tau '21, and Stahlr Edmunds have written for the businessman who learned all his economics—if any—before statistics meant much. Most books on economics waste several chapters educating the reader up to the point where he can understand what the author wants to say. This one wastes only about 15 pages. Then the reader realizes that he is in the presence of usable facts.

Arthur Upgren is dean of the Dartmouth College Business school. Not so long ago he was vice president and economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. Stahlr Edmunds is senior economist for the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., which publishes business magazines and books. Perhaps their practical backgrounds made them base almost the entire book on something the businessman can hold on to: Gross National Product. They show how it is made up, how it changes and what makes it change. The reader learns to recognize the effect of changes in credit policy, the jittery fears of businessmen reducing inventory, the roller coaster swings in Government spending, the vagaries of consumer spending and saving habits.

The authors steer clear of economic panaceas, but they appear to agree that a modicum of planning is necessary for our economy. "When you look at the United States economy," they say, "you naturally and consistently see one thing as the central objective for the American people—high productive employment. The next step * * * is to calculate how much economic activity must be generated * * * to give you a total which is big enough to insure that everyone has a chance to be adequately (and profitably) employed."

They add: "The savings for growth up to World War I were provided mostly by individuals. Then the personal income tax changed this. Lately savings have been provided by corporations plowing back earnings. The corporation income tax may be changing this. Who shall provide the savings for growth in the future—individuals, corporations or government? That is one of the great issues of our times."

Mr. Crane is a financial and business news writer for The Times.—New York Times Book Review

Ode to Friendship

DURING the fifty-year service at the 1953 Congress in Atlanta, Judge Samuel H. Sibley, Eta '92, quoted a verse from a poem which had historical significance. "Ode to Friendship" was the poem, referred to as the Chi Phi Annual Poem. It was written for delivery at the banquet on Nov. 13, 1891, given during the Chi Phi Congress at the Kimball House in Atlanta. Lucian Lamar Knight was its distinguished author. He had been initiated at Eta Chapter on Oct. 6, 1885. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. After his work at the University of Georgia was completed, he took his Master's degree at Princeton and was later awarded an LL.D. at Georgia. In 1892 he started his career on the Atlanta Constitution, becoming its editor in 1908. He organized the Georgia Department of Archives and History, compiled the State Record in 1913 and the State History in 1918. He wrote Reminiscences of Famous Georgians, Georgia's Landmarks, Memorials and Legends, Standard History of Georgia, Memorials of Dixie Land, and Stone Mountain and Other Poems. He was again a participant at the banquet given during the Congress of 1908 held in Atlanta at the Piedmont Hotel, speaking this time on "Memories of Auld Lang Syne." "Ode to Friendship" appeared in Memorials of Dixie Land, published by the Byrd Printing Co., while Brother Knight was State Historian in 1919.

The golden summer, with the changing year,
Again has withered in the garnered sheaf;
The autumn hues throughout the fields appear,
And tiny sunsets glow in every leaf.

The mellow season, in its mild return,
Brings joy and plenty with its rosy skies,
And spreads again where bright the tapers burn,
The rich repast of Friendship and Chi Phis.

The far-off Rockies—giants of the west,
The Alleghenies—monarchs of the east,
The northern lakes—produce the friendly guest,
And every climate mingles at our feast.

We miss, tonight, the chief of lovely men,
Like gifted Hallam in his prime removed,
Who toiled for brotherhood with lips and pen,
And fell a martyr in the cause he loved.

No cloak of office from his shoulders hung;
He wore no title, played no usual part,
Yet left an epitaph on every tongue,
And found a sepulchre in every heart.

I tune my harp—with agitation pale—
And like the minstrel of the border lays,
With trembling hand, I sweep the measured scale,
And wake the symphony of other days.

The banquet fades, and from its withering sight,
The spirit flies to other haunts of joy,
Where, 'mid the scenes of youth, restored tonight,
We lose the man and live again the boy.

The campus green, bright with the spring returns,
The lofty oaks with their luxuriant arms;
And pleasures long committed to their urns
Revive tonight, and don their wasted charms.

We tread once more the old familiar grounds,
The paths through which we loitered, still the same;
The fields of sport where play awoke the sounds,
And eager faces watched the merry game.

The stern preceptors enter now the view,
And once again their wonted places fill;

Their portraits which the idle artist drew
Yet claim the walls and wear their terror still.

Again when evening's silent shadows fall,
No longer worried with dull "math" or Greek,
We gather radiant in our chapter hall,
Where mirth and music end the busy week.

Bright were the hours within the chapter spent,
When study through, we faced the day of rest;
No grievance there preferred its discontent,
And naught but pleasure was the bosom's guest.

Fled are the days and all the charms they brought;
No lingering hours of all the past remain,
Yet oft will Memory guide the course of thought,
And lead us back into their smiles again.

Alas, our eyelids now grow moist with tears,
And melancholy spreads her mournful cloud,
For some who shared the joy of other years,
Now rest within the silence and the shroud.

Chi Phi, in sorrow for their early doom,
A spot memorial in her heart will keep,
And oft in spring-time when the roses bloom,
Will sprinkle Love's sweet incense where they sleep.

Away sad reveries. Go pour your grief
Where bitter tears and gloomy thoughts belong;
Come genial Laughter with your heart's relief,
And lend your lighter music to my song.

Dame Nature is herself a true Chi Phi,
With azure blue her lofty dome she fills;
With scarlet tinge she stains her roses' dye,
And lights her crown of sunset on the hills.

Our colors wake the dawn amid the dew,
And dye the liquid grandeur of the globe;
They wed each other in the violet's hue,
And blend in royalty's imperial robe.

But lovelier yet than Nature's dreamy sky,
Or April's boasted flower in the glade,
They smile from ambush in the azure eye,
And paint the blushes of the Chi Phi maid.

Long may she rule, queen of the heart and home,
Her loyal subject and her lover sings,
Till Heaven, though little, shall improve her some,
And make her perfect with a pair of wings.

Adieu, sweet maid! I tune my harp again,
And give to Friendship its unworthy chords;
With trembling effort I arouse its strain,
And pour its mild soprano into words.

What charms, O Friendship, at thy mention start,
And own the magic of thy gentle sway,
As music swells beneath the touch of art,
Or roses answer to the call of May!

The haunts of youth where pleasure first awoke,
And made each playmate to the bosom dear,
Ere sombre grief the rippling current broke,
And taught the eye the science of a tear.

The soft companionship of later moons,
The twilight rambles in the shady grove,
The nook where courtship crooned its amorous tunes,
And roused the lighter passion into love.

Whatever grief or sorrow claims the heart,
Thy kindred sympathy its share partakes;
Whatever bliss an hour may impart,
Thy own pure ecstasy the glow awakes.

Friends are the brightest jewels we can wear,
The truest solace to our sorrows given,
They make our daily burdens light to bear,
And give to home the portraiture of Heaven.

The man who seeks for gold instead of friends,
Though reach he may the end for which he tries,
Will find that trouble the success attends,
And own the effort greater than the prize.

The miser, bloated with a wealth untold,
Who greets no friendly caller at his door,
Lives wretchedly amid his garnered gold,
And dies, in sight of all his plenty, poor.

And yet the tenant of the lowly cot,
Who shares with Friendship what his fortune brings,
May boast the bounty of his humble lot,
And even loathe the luxury of kings.

Ah, gold, my friends, is not—nor empty fame,
The wish to further with our zeal and prayers;
The best of riches is a treasured name,
And loyal friends to smile away our cares.

O Time, when life beats feebly in the veins,
And wintry snow upon my head descends,
Take health and strength and all my paltry gains,
But leave me still my honor and my friends!

But still there draws apace the final doom,
The misty vision of the tearful eye,
When muffled feet, like snowflakes, tread the room,
And sighs half smothered breathe the last goodbye.

O, say, will Friendship wither in the breast,
Where Nature nourished it with thoughts sublime,
And share for aye the mute unbroken rest,
Beneath the crumbling monuments of time?

No, no, 'twill prove triumphant over death,
The separation of the bleak, cold sod,

And bright in Paradise renew its breath
Among the smiling evergreens of God.

Enough. I draw the rhythm to its end;
The music ceases and the tale is told;
It only follows that we act the friend,
And suit our conduct to the faith we hold.

It matters not that we achieve renown,
And wear the fleeting honors of the earth,
We can afford to waive the meaner gown,
If, in its stead, we wear the nobler worth.

A people's favor, purchased by disgrace,
Though proud their office is not worth the cost;
Better a living in a lowly place,
Than lofty station with its honor lost.

We can afford to brave the world's cold slight,
And calmly suffer with the true oppress,
If, well assured, we wrestle for the right,
And satisfy the critic in the breast.

Chi Phi, my friends, will not despise the heath,
Though no pale marble looms above our clay,
If Friendship there shall lay her silent wreath,
Or, with a tender eloquence, shall say:

"Here lies a friend—without reproach or blame,
Or act disloyal in the race he ran,
Who neither cringed nor crooked the knee to fame,
And only toiled to live and die, a man."

Enough, enough. I breathe a soft good night,
But ere pronounced my heart avows its pain,
For through the glamour of the golden light,
There steals the whisper, "shall we meet again?"

God grant we may—beneath far lovelier skies
Than sprinkle beauty through the balmy south,
Where, 'mid the hills, sweet Friendship never dies,
And life is templed in eternal youth.

ACCORDING TO THE PRESS, Chi Phis did . . .

Present Portrait

A PORTRAIT of Benjamin Russell, Alpha '99, Tau '99, founder of the Russell Manufacturing Company of Alexander City and first president of the Alabama Chamber of Commerce, was presented to Tau Chapter of Chi Phi Fraternity at the University of Alabama, on Oct. 24, following the Homecoming game.

Mr. Russell, who was a member of Alpha Chapter of Chi Phi at the University of Virginia in 1899, was one of the founders of Tau Chapter at the University of Alabama in 1920. He also served the Fraternity as Grand Alpha in 1930.

Judge E. A. Coley, Tau '27, Alexander City, made the presentation speech. Thomas D. Russell, Tau '25, son of Benjamin Russell and an alumnus of Tau Chapter, unveiled the portrait.

Mr. Russell was born in 1876 and died in 1941.

Technical Consultant

HARD by the Zumbro river here in Minnesota's second smallest county seat town (pop. 486), a country weekly newspaper has been reborn.

Officiating at the rebirth was a heart specialist, Dr. Harry L. Smith, retired. Retired, that is, last October as head of a section of internal medicine at Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., and as professor of medicine at University of Minnesota, but now caught up in what he calls a "turmoil" as new publisher and medicine man of the Mantorville Express.

In fairness to the Express, it should be pointed out that the tough little Dodge county weekly already has put in almost 96 years of newspapering and lays claim to being Minnesota's oldest newspaper published without change of name.

But in its newest reincarnation—just two weeks ago—it gives promise of what its publisher hopes will be a life very different from that of its past or of most country weeklies.

It has, among other things, a Washington capital correspondent, a full-fledged poet laureate, a correspondent who attended the coronation of Queen Elizabeth last spring, and a culinary expert who tells housewife readers how to whip up frozen pineapple and strawberries with kirsch.

"Look," Mrs. Frances Judson Gooding told her publisher when he suggested frozen pineapple and strawberries with kirsch might be too rich for readers' blood, "these housewives already know how to bake potatoes."

"I've never eaten frozen pineapple and strawberries with kirsch in my life," Dr. James Eckman, Gamma Delta '32, the paper's technical consultant, confided, "but Jens tells me the recipe went over well with local housewives."

"Jens" is Lyman W. Jensen, manager of the Express and the man who published the Express for about a year before the new publisher took over.

His publishing venture is Smith's way of "retiring," but he is quick to concede that to date, the Express has been tougher than his medical work.

He and Eckman, a member of the publications section at Mayo clinic, are partners in the paper. The Eckman in the partnership is "silent" because Eckman's clinic duties are of full-time nature, leaving him only after hours and week ends to write for the Express. Smith commutes from his Rochester home—17 miles away—daily.

As Smith explains it, "I was determined not to retire to the golf course and Jim (Eckman) was eager that we go into this newspaper deal." As Eckman explains it, "Doc Smith had the printing bug."

Both of them appear to be right. Eckman, whose title stems from his doctor of philosophy degree, had been a typhophile since about 1939 when he began collecting unusual and rare varieties of printing type from Germany and England.

Now he owns about 300 cases of printing type, including a case of 22-point Union Pearl that dates back to 1690 (from Sheffield, England), and some Dutch type that a New York friend persuaded a museum in Haarlem, Holland, to cast up for Eckman from matrices that go back to 1768.

About the time Eckman was setting up his own print shop in his home, Smith was stopping around at Eckman's clinic office to chin about their mutual interest in typography. He asked Eckman to tackle the job of printing 240 copies of Smith's memoirs in 1940—250 pages of hand-set type. By then, both were well bitten by the printing bug.

Eckman now does most of the editorial and news writing and it is he who covered the coronation, while he and his wife traveled in England, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, and France visiting famous foundries in search of more rare type faces.

This staff—and others who will be invited to join it—is the kind of staff most weekly papers would like to buy, but couldn't. The Express gets it free and gladly.

Already the circulation in Rochester is booming—about 200 of the 600 subscribers live there, and the Rochester interest is reflected in frequent editorials on Rochester matters as well as local items from the medical city.—Daryle Feldmeir in The Minneapolis Tribune.

Heads Service

FORMAL organization of the Metropolitan Atlanta Community Services, Inc., to replace the Community Planning Council and the Atlanta Community Chest, was carried out at a meeting of the delegate assembly of the parent group attended by 250 delegates.

The Metropolitan Atlanta Community Services, Inc., it was emphasized at the assembly, will provide the community with improved coordinated social planning and stronger health and welfare. At the initial meeting a resolution was adopted providing for acceptance by the new group of assets, properties, moneys of the planning and chest groups.

Officers elected included Edward Smith, Gamma '32, president; R. L. Foreman, Jr., Frank Malone, R. F. Whitaker and F. M. Ridley, Jr., vice presidents, and Gordon Jones, Treasurer.—Atlanta Constitution.

Distinguished Student

RALSTON W. SCHULTZ, Alpha-Tau '55, has been selected as a Distinguished AFROTC Student at the University of Michigan. Selection is based on academic and military standing in the upper third of the Air Science III class; accumulative standing among the upper third of the academic class; high moral character and a definite aptitude in the Air Force; demonstration of leadership, particularly by participation in recognized extracurricular activities; an excellent record at AFROTC summer training camp; recommendation by the Dean of the college. The citation carries with it possible eligibility for designation later as a Distinguished AFROTC Graduate and the congratulations of Colonel William L. Todd, USAF.

Cadet Sergeant

WILLIAM NELSON, Gamma '52, has been promoted to cadet sergeant at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. Rank in the Corps of Cadets is based upon military efficiency and the individual's aptitude for the military service. Brother Nelson is a senior at the Academy. He spent part of the summer training new plebes and sophomores at Camp Buckner.

Life Member

THOMAS D'ARCY BROPHY, Beta '16, chairman of Kenyon & Eckhardt, Inc., (Ford Anniversary TV Show), and president of American Heritage Foundation, has been elected member for life of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Corp. He has been an alumni term member for the last five years, according to the New York Herald Tribune.

Brother Brophy was born in Butte, Mont., on Oct. 18, 1893, the son of Patrick Jerome and Margaret D'Arcy Brophy. He was graduated from Gonzaga College, Spokane, Wash., in 1912, and was given an LL.D. by the College this year. He received his B.S. degree from MIT in 1916. His marriage to Jessie Stuart Milligan occurred on Oct. 9, 1923. Their children are Mrs. John L. Cleveland, Jr., Joan Sheila, and the late Ensign Thomas D'Arcy, Jr., who died in the Philippine Sea Area on July 30, 1945.

Honors and responsibilities have been many. Brother Brophy was chairman of the American Assn. of Advertising Agencies in 1948-49; chairman of the Advisory Council, 1949-52; director, the Advertising Council; director and chairman, Public Relations, USO, 1941-47; director and member of the executive committee, National War Fund, 1943-45. He was a trustee of the Village of Scarsdale, N. Y., where he lives at 45 Brewster Rd., from 1936 to 1938.

He was awarded the Gold Medal for Contemporary Service to Advertising, Annual Advertising Awards in 1952. In 1951 the School of Journalism of Syracuse University gave him the Distinguished Service Medal. The Civic Service Award of the National Conference of Christians and Jews was presented to him in 1950. In 1947 he was honorary Commander of the Order of the British Empire. The Wall Street post of the American Legion gave him the Gold Medal for Americanism the same year and, in 1948, he was awarded the Good Citizenship Medal by the Sons of the American Revolution.

Brother Brophy was the banquet speaker at the Greek Week banquet, University of Minnesota, in February.

Earns Praise

"His writing is certainly more interesting and provocative than any other current poetry," Hayden Carruth of the New York Times said of Theodore Roethke, Alpha-Tau '29, professor of English at the University.

Professor Roethke recently published The Waking, a volume including all his poetry written during the past 20 years. The book contains poetry from his first book, Open House, and later works, The Lost Son and Other Poems, and Praise to the End. Eleven of his new poems are also included in this latest volume.

At present Professor Roethke is acting as guest editor of New World Writing to which he has contributed a prose preface. Recently released, the book is printed in over 100,000 copies. He is one of the five poets whose work is included in the book.

While in England last summer, he did a half-hour recording of his own work for the British Broadcasting Company to be heard soon in England. Last fall, Dylan Thomas read three of his longer poems for the BBC. Recently, Radio Hamburg, German radio station, and Boston, and New York stations have carried discussions of his poetry.

Traveling to New York and Europe during the past year for the "Fund for the Advancement of Education," Professor Roethke has returned to the University teaching staff.

His poems have been translated and have appeared in foreign magazines including the German Perspectiven, French Profils, Italian Botteghe Oscure, Polish Kultura, and are being translated into Swedish and Norwegian.

Educated at the University of Michigan and Harvard, Professor Roethke taught at Lafayette College, Penn State, and Bennington before coming to the University.

He has received two Guggenheim Fellowships, the Levinson Prize for 1951, and an award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Some of Roethke's best-known poems from The Waking are those written from his own childhood experiences, employing children's language and intelligence.—By MARALYN FRAME in University of Washington Daily.

Industry President

EUGENE F. MCCARTHY, Omicron '27, has been elected president of Beals, McCarthy & Rogers, Inc., Buffalo, succeeding J. Frederick Rogers, who died May 31. Mr. McCarthy was formerly vice president of the company. He was president of the National Industrial Distributors Assn. in 1945 and 1946.

With the company since 1927, the new president is the son of the late Edmund D. McCarthy, founder and president of the former McCarthy Bros. & Ford, Inc., now the Buffalo Electric Co. His uncle, the late Eugene J. McCarthy, was president of Beals, McCarthy & Rogers from 1919 to 1926.

The new president is a graduate of Yale University. He is a director of Buffalo Electric.

In 1951, he served the National Production Authority as director of the General Components Division.—Industrial Distribution.

Bank VeePee

FREEMAN STRICKLAND, Omega '24, and Frank T. Davis, vice presidents of The First National Bank of Atlanta, were promoted to senior vice presidents, it was announced by James D. Robinson, Jr., Gamma '25, chairman of the board of directors.

These promotions and additions to the executive staff were made to keep pace with the growth of the bank along with that of the community which it serves, Mr. Robinson said.

Mr. Strickland has been with First National since 1925 when he started as a bookkeeper, after attending Georgia Tech where he was a member of Chi Phi Fraternity.

He was successively promoted to assistant vice president in 1933 and vice president in 1938.

He is a member of the State Board of Regents of the University of Georgia, vice president and director of the Southern Belting Co., of New Orleans, chairman of the Buford Commercial Bank, member of the 4-H Club Advisory Council, and past president of the Georgia Bankers Association. He is a member of a number of civic and social clubs.—Atlanta Constitution.

Speaker's Birthday

HOUSE SPEAKER WILLIAM SAXBE, Iota '38, of Champaign County paused long enough, June 24, to receive the plaudits of the House on his 37th birthday. Carl Wallace, son of Rep. Ed Wallace (D, Pickaway), presented the speaker with a birthday cake which outlined the state, including Lake Erie. The decorations included an outline of his home county of Champaign, together with a gavel, symbolic of his authority as presiding officer of the House, an inscription, "Happy Birthday," and along the border were red carnations. Rep. A. G. Lancione (D, Belmont) made an impromptu speech, concluding by throwing a package of chewing tobacco at the Speaker's desk, while Rep. Dann Taber (R, Gallia) presented a resolution together with a brand new spittoon to replace the wooden box and sand hidden behind the Speaker's desk. "This is the nicest birthday I have ever had, and I want you to know that I appreciate it," Saxbe said.—Columbus Dispatch.

COLLEGE CHAPTERS

Alpha to Repeat Faculty Party

THOMAS O. TROTTER
Alpha
University of Virginia

ALPHA CHAPTER's fall session was highlighted by a visit from Judge L. Z. Rosser in December. A banquet was held at the house, followed by a fraternity meeting. These festivities in honor of Judge Rosser were well attended by local Chi Phi Alumni from the Charlottesville area. Dr. Phil Porter, who is now in his 39th year with Alpha Chapter, was, as he is always, a major attraction for all of the returning Alumni. The evening was a definite success.

We were also extremely pleased with the large group of Alumni who returned to Alpha Chapter for Homecoming Weekend. It was certainly a pleasure to see so many of our Alumni back again, and it was agreed that it was the finest turnout the Chapter has had in several years.

During the off-season rush period which was held this fall, Alpha Chapter pledged one man, William Kemp Norman, Jr., from Norfolk. Under the able leadership of Albert Ernest, our rush chairman, we are looking forward to a highly successful first-year rush program, which is now underway. Bid Sunday is to be on Feb. 28. Alpha Chapter would like to take this opportunity to thank our many friends who sent us recommendations on some fine first-year men.

The football team gained the playoffs in intramurals while the boxing team placed second among the fraternities in the 3-night tournament and third in the standings of the entire University. The complete fall intramural standings found Alpha Chapter ranking 10th among the 28 fraternities.

A social event which proved extremely successful was a party for various members of the faculty. We plan to make this party an annual event on our calendar in future years. The Chapter's annual Christmas party was also greatly enjoyed.

I am pleased to announce that William R. Kitchin, Class of '49, was appointed Alpha Chapter's new Council Representative this fall. Brother Kitchin has been extremely helpful to the Chapter since moving to Charlottesville.

Letters were received from two of Alpha Chapter's recent Alumni who are now serving in the Armed Forces. Brother Robert S. Young, USA, is now stationed in Germany, and Joe D. Wilson is with the Marine Corps in California.—LITTELL WHITE.

Beta Members in Activities

JOHN L. ALLEN
Alpha
MIT

AFTER an eventful rush week, Beta settled down to the business of work at the Institute. We did add one more pledge. He is Oystein Linge, from Norway. This addition made it necessary to open a room in the basement since the house was already overflowing. The help situation seems to have settled down and the business side of the house is running smoothly.

Beta is becoming very active in athletics and other extracurricular activities. Bud Hebler was then initiated into TBII. Bill Willoughby is president of KKΣ and is editor of The Technique, the yearbook. Jack Allen was captain of the soccer team; Jack Kissinger plays on the lacrosse team; and Lloyd Brace is on the crew. The pledges are also active. Jim Chorak plays in the symphony orchestra; Harry Johnson is on the rifle team; and Brooke Anderson was on the freshman soccer team. Other Brothers and pledges are active in the Glee Club, Technique, Technology Christian Association, Naval Architecture Society, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Marketing Club, Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, and Scabbard and Blade.

The Hallowe'en Party, on October 24, had good decorations, thanks to the pledges. After a great many changes in the punch, the Fall Formal also was successful. The punch finally agreed upon was certainly different. The Christmas Party was held a week before Christmas vacation. The afternoon party was given for children from Boston settlement houses. Jim Astrue was again Santa Claus, but this year he remembered the name of the reindeer. A party was held in the evening for Brothers and pledges.—RICHARD W. FREES.

Gamma Pledges Have Study Hall

ERNEST POYO
Alpha
Emory University

DURING fall quarter, Gamma undertook to continue two projects which were started last year: guest speakers and pledge study halls. We have set aside one Thursday night in each month for a guest speaker. So far, three speakers have met with us and led discussions: Dr. Pafford, chairman of the English Department at Emory; Dr. Boozer of the Bible Department; and Dr. Holland, chairman of the Political Science Department. These men gave very interesting talks and we are looking forward to other speakers to follow during the remainder of the year. Bill Pavlovsky, chairman of the Scholarship Committee, is in charge of holding pledge study halls this year. These study halls are held four nights a week for pledges who are making unsatisfactory grades. It has been proven that pledges who take full advantage of such study periods find that a definite improvement occurs in their grades.

In sports during the fall quarter Gamma participated in touch football and swimming. In the former, our team won its first three games and finished fourth in the championship fight. Our team also finished fourth in interfraternity swimming. Radford Janney, as athletic chairman, is doing a very commendable job in organizing Gamma's various athletic teams.

Special recognition should go to Pledge Bill Morgan who was elected mogul, and Pledge Baxter Gentry who was elected secretary of the fall Pledge Class. However, it is through the collective effort of the entire class that its pledge project has been practically completed. At the beginning of the quarter the pledges decided to build a terrace which would be used primarily for spring and summer dances and parties. Gamma is very proud of its pledge class and we feel certain that the Chapter will be in most capable hands.

At the end of each fall quarter Gamma joins the rest of the fraternities at Emory and other Atlanta organizations in collecting money for the Empty Stocking Fund which provides a Christmas for the underprivileged children of Atlanta. Last year we won two trophies: one for the organization throughout Atlanta which collected the most money, and the second for the individual who collected the most money: Bob Northcutt. This year's winners have not been announced.—TED McCUTCHEN.

Delta Pledges II Freshmen in Rush

PETER GEBEL
Alpha
Rutgers University

DELTA has completed a successful rushing season with 11 new pledges: Alphie Nelson, Bill Pryor, Bob Whitman, John Carbone, Brad Bingham, Tom Romeo, Sam Moschella, Dick McKeebey, Al Husband, Tom Laufer, and Bob Springer, all freshmen. Alphie, Brad, Tom Laufer, and Bob Springer have taken part in freshman football while Sam Moschella was on the soccer team. With winter sports now in full swing, we see three more pledges active. Dick McKeebey and Al Husband are on the frosh wrestling team and Bill Pryor is on the basketball team. Brothers taking part in winter activities are Walt Porter playing varsity basketball for his third year and Deane Oliver, a sophomore, having another successful year at wrestling. Active in Queens Theater is Ron Willis who is showing the audience his talents as an actor.

We are happy to see many of last year's Alumni around the house for various activities. Among those who have dropped in are Horace Greeley, Bob Filip, Bob Quackenboss, Bill Snedeker, Jack Paulas, Bill Howard, and Dick Kahler.

There will be a meeting of the Brothers and some active Alumni on Jan. 15 to discuss plans for making repairs on the house. We hope this will be a success and action will be taken in the near future.—DONALD VINEBURG.

Epsilon Invites Chi Phis to Parties

JOSEPH S. GILLESPIE, JR., Alpha
Hampden-Sydney College

We welcome to Epsilon William Moseley from South Hill and Edwin McCall from Tasewell, both of whom were initiated last fall. Brother Moseley is cousin to Charley Moseley, Epsilon '52.

Hampden-Sydney Homecoming saw over 250 Alumni and friends visit the house for the annual buffet supper on Oct. 24. A number of faculty members and freshmen were invited and the evening was rated a big success by all. Thanks are due Brother Hughes and his committee who handled the dinner arrangements. According to Hughes all credit should be given the mothers who so graciously donated their time and energy. Following the Saturday night dance, a combo entertained at the house.

Plans are now being made for the annual Chi Phi Spring Weekend, which will be held the latter part of April. After last year's success, the so-called "Spring Parties" have definitely been established as an annual affair. We, at Epsilon, wish to extend a cordial invitation to all Alumni and friends to the 2-night party and especially to the Brothers at nearby Alpha and Alpha-Alpha Chapters.

We are proud to announce that Miss Josie Tracy from Willingford, Pa., has been elected Sweetheart of Epsilon for '54. Josie is a Junior at Vassar and is engaged to Rick Rosenlund. She will reign over the coming Spring Parties.

Officers for this year are: Joe Gillespie, Tasewell, Alpha; Gordon Lucey, Leonia, N. J., Beta; George Barner, Virginia Beach, Gamma; Jim Overbey, Danville, Delta.—ROYSTER LYLE, JR.

Zeta Parents Enjoy Weekend

THOMAS McFALLS
Alpha
Franklin & Marshall

ZETA CHAPTER has added three pledges to its roster in the persons of Tom Bole, Guy Butler, and Bill Shearer. These fellows did much of the work during their Construction Week in preparation for the replastering of several rooms of the house. Our Alumni Committee, headed by David Watt, has donated a new rug for the entrance hallway and is also footing the bill for the plastering job.

We are enthusiastically anticipating Freshman Rush Week, held the first week of the second semester. Our first semester rushing parties, one a Monte Carlo Casino affair and the other following the Wild West vein, were considered successful by Brothers and freshmen alike.

On Parents' Day, Oct. 31, Zeta held a buffet supper for Brothers and their parents following the Lafayette football game. The parents took advantage of this open house opportunity and enjoyed touring the house. Winter Weekend at F & M consisted mainly of an all-college formal dance on Friday night, Dec. 11, and a house party for Brothers and their dates on Saturday night. The party, with Christmas as its costume theme, was complete with splendid decorations and a 4-man musical combo. Zeta, in coöperation with the Ventura Club, a local service organization, held a Christmas party for underprivileged children of Lancaster on Dec. 19. On this and other numerous occasions during the past few months the Brothers have found the living room fireplace a close friend indeed.

In the field of intramural sports, Zeta was quite successful, taking a second place in football, and grabbing a run-away first in wrestling. Our Chapter is well represented on the varsity wrestling squad, with Artie Helf, Jerry Yoder, Dick Barley, Ken Kurtz, Hal DeHaven, Tom Riglin, Carl Bemiller, and John Keener forming the nucleus of the team. Ray Baughman, on the varsity basketball team, and Tom Phillips, Herb Schaffner, and Co-captain Phil Long of the varsity swimming team round out the winter sports participants.

The election of officers for the second semester at Zeta was held just before the Christmas holidays began. New officers are Tom McFalls, Alpha; Dave Daubenspeck, Beta; Frank Christ, Gamma; Ken Smith, Delta; Bud Eaton, Epsilon; and Clark McSparran continuing as Zeta.—CLARK McSPARRAN, JR.

Theta Pledges 19 Students

DICK BOWMAN
Alpha
Rensselaer

CONGRATULATIONS to Theta's new officers! They are Dick Bowman, Alpha; Ray Urbinato, Beta; Dick Will, Gamma; Bert Wallin, Delta; Ken Klindtworth, Epsilon; and Dave Orth, Zeta. We also want to thank the retiring officers for the great job which they did.

Theta conducted pledging ceremonies for 19 new pledges. We wish Bob Andreini, Don Borst, Curt Brayer, Charlie Guck, Dick Kennedy, Charlie Krauser, George Kunselman, Martin Landaeta, John Laws, Bruce McGilvray, Ray Miller, Tom Penniman, Phil Rockmaker, John Rothman, Bert Ryburn, James Shannon, Bob Simmions, Bob Torgenson, and Doug Walmsley the best of luck.

Theta is proud to have Bob Kluthe elected to Who's Who in American Colleges. Bob is a rising chemical engineer, but is planning to spend two years in the Navy as an officer, first. This year he is co-captain of the lacrosse team and an excellent defenseman in that sport.—

DAVE ORTH.

Kappa Places First in Three Sports

RONALD PAUL SIEPMAN, Alpha
University of Wisconsin

WITH February and semester finals at Wisconsin, election of new officers and the initiation of six new Brothers featured the activities of Kappa Chapter. Ronald P. Siepman, a Wauwatosa senior, was chosen Alpha. Brother Siepman has been an active participant in campus affairs as well as XΦ activities. His work as Beta for the recently concluded semester and his work as initiation and scholastic chairman have proven him to be an energetic, capable leader. He has also served as Public Relations director for the Wisconsin Student Assn. In this capacity he was instrumental in the reorganization of student government into a more efficient unit. Taking over Brother Siepman's position as Beta is Frank S. Palen, Milwaukee, also a senior. Carl E. Merow, Two Rivers junior, is the new Gamma, and Jack R. Kunkel, another Milwaukee senior, holds the position of Epsilon. The new Delta is yet to be selected.

Shortly before the election of new officers, six Wisconsin men were initiated into Kappa: Stanley J. Schreiber, Sheboygan; Jack R. Kunkel, Milwaukee; Joseph R. Chaiclin, Flushing, New York; Robert L. Linn, Hayward; Aage Jensen, Junior, Racine; William W. Wuerger, DePere.

On the social scene Kappa activities have been highlighted by a Winter Formal and another successful Cherokee Indian Party, an annual fall feature here at Kappa. Frank Samels must be commended for his accomplishments as social chairman for the past semester.

In intramural athletics, Jack Eimerman, athletic chairman, has had a successful semester. His football and basketball teams both won Division championships as did the volleyball team.—E. C. WALLENFELDT.

Lambda Entertains Orphans at Party

PETER HAWKINS, Alpha
University of California

JUST before Christmas vacation, Lambda elected Pete Hawkins Alpha for the spring semester. Also elected along with Pete were Ted Killeen, Beta; Dick Rahl, Gamma; Jim Lloyd, Delta, and Ed White, Zeta.

On the social side, Lambda climaxed the semester with the Christmas Formal which was a big success as usual. After warming up at Joe Bingaman's ancestral home, the party moved back to the house where Mother Poter served the dinner and the actual dance began. The evening was climaxed by the arrival of ol' Saint Nick, who brought goodies for all. Following the Formal the Chapter joined with KKI to hold our annual Christmas Party for underprivileged children. The children spent an enjoyable afternoon eating, playing, and receiving gifts at the house. After the kiddies were taken home, the Kappas stayed for dinner and another small celebration ensued.

Lambda's intramural footballers, playing true to form, were eliminated early in the competition, but those invincible bowlers and the "nonsuch" horseshoe team are proving to be the class of campus competition. Other fine efforts are being turned in by our volleyball team and the tennis squad. In varsity competition the spotlight is still held by Dick Rahl and Frank Merlo, but "Boy Heroes" Murray Hannon and Ed White are out for rugby. Word has it that Coach "Doc" Hudson has never seen a more aggressive duo than White and Hannon.

In campus activities, we have Ed Stocker, who is managing The Blue and Gold, the college yearbook. Pete Hawkins has become a member of Winged Helmet, the junior-senior men's honor society, while Earl Riley, Frank Merlo, Murray Hannon, and Ed White are in Triune, the sophomore honor society.—
EDWARD WHITE.

Mu Receives Plaque for Softball Team

GEORGE ARTHUR SPROWL, Alpha
Stevens Institute of Technology

SINCE Mu Chapter's last communiqué to CHAKETT, five new Brothers have been taken into the fold. George Alther, Bob Bozzone, Charlie Lewis, Dick Macintosh, and Tom Wright were initiated in November. The Chapter also boasts two new pledges in Bob Lissman and Bob McFiggins and a new social member in Denny Candler.

Not only has Mu Chapter had some face changes, but Green Gate, the chapter house, has undergone some renovations. With the help of the Mothers' Club, a new rug was purchased for the living room, and new slip-covers were made for the chairs. A modern chandelier has replaced the original, antiquated one in the same room, and, due to the efforts of Al Pingpank, the ceiling now has a new coat of paint.

Congratulations are in order for Joe Wolf, a junior, who has been initiated into TBII, national engineering honor fraternity. Besides continually placing his name on the Dean's List, Joe has contributed much to the school through his exemplary work in extracurricular activities. Les Wuerfl, also a junior, has been rewarded for his work as business manager of The Stute, the school newspaper, by initiation into ΠΔΕ, national honorary journalistic fraternity. Ed Hess, Zeta of Mu, recently was honored by being delegated to represent the colleges of New Jersey at the National Association of Manufacturers Convention in New York, where he had the pleasure of meeting Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and many prominent industrialists. Chuck Kovarik has been appointed to the post of Activities Editor of the 1954 Link, the school yearbook, while Dick Macintosh has been initiated into ΑΦΩ, national service fraternity.

Al Pingpank, our social chairman, has kept the Brothers and pledges well occupied with a heavy party schedule. Many of these social events are stimulated by visits from Hunter College sororities and by local school dances. The biggest social event of the season, however, was Winter Carnival Weekend, held in December immediately preceding the Christmas holidays. The Weekend opened Friday night with a formal at the Hotel Edison in New York, at which Mu of XΦ was formally presented with the Interfraternity Council Softball Plaque for the past season. The formal was followed by a party at the house during which novelty gifts were exchanged. Saturday afternoon saw everyone at the Stevens Theater, witnessing a play executed by the Dramatic Society, of which Brother Chuck Kovarik is president and Brother Pete Fletcher is a leading actor. Saturday evening, the Stevens-N.C.E. basketball game was followed by a "Safari" party, with jungle costumes as the mode. At the game, Armand Bassi and Ed Hess were tapped by Gear and Triangle, a Stevens honorary activities society. Sunday ended festivities with a jazz concert and party.—
EDWIN HESS.

Nu Relates Pinning Custom

WALTER H. MENDGEN, Jr., Alpha
University of Texas

As a social organization, Nu has given a number of successful parties. We had a Mothers' Day honoring mothers of chapter members with luncheon and block seats to the TCU game that afternoon. The day was one well spent in which all assembled took advantage of the opportunity to meet parents, the housemother, Mrs. Patsy Welch, and Brothers.

Our Hood Party later on in the year was a costume affair where members and dates came dressed as gangsters and molls. Phil Moss in mustache and sideburns brought the house down with his impersonation of a combination gigolo and vegetable peddler. The annual Christmas party was held in the house. We had a combo, refreshments, and entertainment furnished by the pledge class.

We have also placed emphasis on scholarship and hope to place high in this field. In addition to study halls our pledges have spent considerable time in the basement of the house where they have moved tons of dirt and poured acres of concrete. This was done in the building of our rumpus room.

We have an old custom in this Chapter that comes into effect whenever one of the Brothers becomes pinned. We begin by sending flowers to our new sister and follow up with a pinning serenade. Later both of the lovebirds are thrown into Littlefield Fountain. So far this year we have fished out Bill Graves and Shirley Browder (ZTA), Walter Mengden and June Shell (KKF), and Phil Moss and Nancy Perkins (KKF).

We are glad to see Bill Cathey frequently in the house now that he has entered the real estate business here in Austin. Bill is back from the wars in which he operated a stockade in Korea. We regret that at mid-term we lost Walter Hoffe to the University of Illinois and Pledge Hugh Springfield to the Marine Corps.—TERRANCE LEARY.

Xi Loses Football Title

RICHARD H. MILLER
Alpha
Cornell

WITH the completion of the fall rushing program, Xi succeeded in pledging 14 freshmen and one junior: Roger Dohn, Grand Island; Richard Eisinger and Robert Willey, Washington, D. C.; William Freakes, Arlington, Va.; Alfred Hallam, Westfield, N. J.; Lawrence Keenan, Chevy Chase, Md.; Philip Otis, Easton, Pa.; Paul Ramsey, New Haven, Conn.; Robert Rude, Jamestown; Jack Scheibler, Neenah, Wis.; Ralph Scott, Ridgewood, N. J.; Robert Stanwood, Deerfield, Ill.; John Sweeney, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Robert Verstanding, Delmar; and George Woodin, Ithaca. Sam Cottrell, taking over for his ex-roommate, Jim Bowman, as rushing chairman, did a fine job, and this year's Freshman Class promises to be the best in years.

At the conclusion of the soccer season, Xi's two great soccer players were both honored by the team. Roy Tellini was elected co-captain of next year's team, and Karl Leuffen was elected president of Shinguard, the soccer honorary. Big (6'10") Al Hahn has won a place on the varsity basketball team, and, in the second game of the season, scored the point that broke the Barton Hall team scoring record. At this writing, Pledge Tim Woodin is easily the outstanding member of the freshman wrestling squad, having pinned all of his opponents in less than two minutes. Pledge Bob Stanwood is making a big splash with the frosh swimming team.

In intramural athletics, our unscored-upon football team lost the League title by virtue of a two-one first-down loss to ΔTA. The XΦ offense, featured by the left-handed slants of Dick Monahan, and the pass-catching antics of John Sweeney, Bill McKinley, and Bill Scott proved quite effective through the rest of the season, and the defensive line, bolstered by our ex-varsity and freshman performers, Frank DellaCave, Wes Simmons, and Bob Hunter, and ferocious amateur, Dean Hickox, was virtually invincible. The Xi basketball team, although promising equal success, got off to a slow start and lost their first two decisions. But, with lanky Mac McKinnon (6'5"), Bill McKinley (6'4"), and Pete Shurter (6'4"), supported by able ballhandlers Marv Anderson, John Drotning, Karl Leuffen, Bob Verstanding, and Mike Curtis, the squad should realize its pre-season promise and add to its minute victory skein.

Fall House Party, featuring the annual fall Milk-puncher, provided a maximum of hilarity and enjoyment and a minimum of damage to the house, always a pleasing state of affairs. The Pledge Formal, in December, though far more reserved than normal Xi social activities, was a great success.

Junior Weekend should be particularly successful from the Xi standpoint. Bob Leader is chairman of the entire Weekend. Karl Leuffen is chairman of the Queen Contest, and Brothers Manley, MacKinnon, Shurter, Gorrie, Otis, and Curtis are committee members.—C. MICHAEL CURTIS.

Omicron Initiates 32 Members

JOHN S. McCARTHY
Alpha
Yale

THIS past fall Omicron pledged and initiated 32 men: 19 sophomores and 13 juniors. Rushing, which extended from Oct. 12 through Oct. 28, was well executed under the leadership of Maxwell Dickinson and John Lawson.

Pledge training was carried forth under the supervision of Harlan Earnhart as pledge master with supplementary instruction provided through a father-son arrangement. A banquet on the evening of Oct. 29 ushered the new pledges into the training program. Horace Isleib, Omicron's Alumni Adviser, was the main speaker of the evening and, with words of wisdom and wit, revealed to the new pledges the honors and responsibilities of XΦ membership.

Max Dickenson, Charles Crowley, and Harlan Earnhart each contributed to the evening's program.

In addition to two study sessions per week and a weekly work period of four hours, a father-son house project was assumed and performed by each dad. Painting and repair constituted the largest segment of the projects.

On Sunday, Dec. 6, the 32 pledges were formally initiated by the chapter and the following Tuesday evening a banquet was held.

Two of the new members were awarded scholarships by the Omicron Chapter. Brother Brower received the James Van Ham Dale Memorial Scholarship, and Brother Kerin Boardman received the Omicron Trust Association Scholarship.

Throughout the fall Omicron enjoyed several well-planned week ends of fine entertainment under the direction of our social committee chairman, Courtney Ellis. Dartmouth and Harvard Week-ends brought to XΦ peak crowds of enjoyment seekers, and excitement continued from Friday through Sunday. Pat Dorn and Eddie Saranec furnished the musical dance rhythm on Saturday evenings and Red Allen et al beat the jazz on Sunday afternoons.

The year's merrymaking was climaxed by the annual Christmas party held on Dec. 11. Members were absorbed in seasonal spirit as the evening unfurled to produce a Christmas tree, gifts for all, and Santa Claus (alias Alpha McCarthy). Santa Claus gave gifts to all and joined Brother Bob Ward in a round of dance before departing.

Over Christmas vacation the main hallway and the library room of the house were redecorated. The work included repainting, paneling, and new light fixtures. Omicron is anticipating more redecorating in the near future.—HARLAN EARNHART.

Pi Has New Chapter Adviser

JAMES UHTOFF, Alpha
Northwestern University

WITH the fall elections over, these new officers have taken the reins of Pi Chapter. James Uhtoff, Alpha; James Popp, Beta; Robert Christopher, Gamma; Maurice Mazel, Delta; James Zachary, Epsilon; and Kenton Williams, Zeta.

Fall quarter here at Pi has been a busy one with three major parties. The first one was a Formal held at the Tam O'Shanter Country Club in Chicago. The second one was a "Wild West" square dance party given at the Glendale Country Club. The third and last party of the fall quarter was our annual Orphans' Party at the house with Brother Rutland playing the rôle of Santa.

Pi Chapter has a new Chapter Adviser, Dick Lopata, Sigma '46. Dick symbolizes the XΦ spirit everywhere in helping us to build up the Chapter.

During the quarter we had a small gathering of Alumni to present the Lennox Armstrong plaque to Brother Armstrong, Sigma '15, for his help in setting up Pi Chapter when it acquired its house. Alumni present were: Henry C. Bear, Sigma '28; Sid F. Moody, Kappa '20; Walter Jasper, Sigma '15; Irv Poehler, Sigma '28; Victor Cullin, Sigma '20; Dave Clark, Mu '45; Neil Foster, Sigma '48; Bob Hoffman, Sigma '34; Dave Duerwachter, Sigma '52; Dave Fairfield, Sigma '28; Dave Lopata, Sigma '46; Rudy Schlosser, Pi '52; and Clyde Reading.

Pi Chapter has lost one of its Brothers, Sanford Hampton, but to a good cause. He was married on Dec. 17 to Marilyn Prague in St. Joseph, Mich.

With fall quarter over Pi Chapter looks forward to the winter quarter with expectations of hard work with, of course, a mixture of fun.—KENTON WILLIAMS.

Sigma Places First in Volleyball

DONALD CRAMER
Alpha
University of Illinois

ON Jan. 4, Sigma Chapter held its elections at the chapter house. Don Cramer is the new Alpha; John Mueller, Beta; Jim Nyka, Gamma; Jim Calder, Delta; Duane Pedriana, Epsilon; and Gary Anderson is Zeta.

The Sigmamen and KAΘs, paired for this semester's co-recreational volleyball competition, proved to be the winning combination as they went through a tough schedule undefeated to emerge as the all-university co-rec volleyball champions. This was the second year in a row that Sigma has been among the tops in the co-rec volleyball tourney.

Sigma, following a year's "lay-off," again will participate in the annual University Spring Carnival. The men of Sigma have teamed up with KAΘ again for the big event held every spring for the Campus Chest. The Thetas are one of the top sororities of campus, and, with their talents and the XΦs, a great show should result.

Friday, Dec. 11, was the evening of Sigma's Christmas Formal. We used Christmas songs as a theme again. James Rose employed his talents to design the caricatures which portrayed the song titles. Dick Moyer and his boys blew up a storm, and a fine time was had by all.—GARY F. ANDERSON.

Tau Elects New Officers

JERRY SHINAULT, Alpha
University of Alabama

TAU started out the new year with a new slate of officers. The new prexy is Jerry Shinault; Beta, Allan McDonald; Gamma, John Lenski; Delta, Ed King; Epsilon, Pete Spencer; and Zeta, Jim Dupuy.

We have not been inactive in campus affairs. With George Lillich, chairman of the Homecoming committee, we had the best Homecoming yet. Allan McDonald was elected treasurer of OΔK and served as chairman of Who's Who.

The pledges have been busy remodeling the sleeping porch and are doing a fine job.—ALLAN J. McDONALD.

Phi Initiates Foreign Guest

JACK WILLIAMS
Alpha
Amherst

PROBABLY the most outstanding thing that happened here at the Phi during the first semester was the annual Alumni Weekend, Oct. 24. We feel that the Alumni had a better Weekend than in past times, as demonstrated by the many wonderful comments which so many Brothers received. All Phis wish to extend their deepest appreciation for the kind generosity and thoughtfulness of all the Alumni. The generous unsolicited donations by the alumni bought for the house a brand-new Zenith TV set which is now enjoyed by all. Beside this big social event, Phi also held its annual Winter House Dance the week end of Dec. 12. This was especially enjoyable this year due to the fact that the party in the afternoon and the dance were limited to Brothers and a few invited guests. This was quite a change from past dances when there were hundreds of guests. Other plans that Social Chairman Jack Elden has, include the traditional Bowery Brawl to be held in February.

Athletically speaking, Phi has had another one of its better semesters in intramural competition. All the Brothers are proud of the fact that Phi had the highest total of points of all other fraternities at the end of the fall intramurals. Intramural Manager Tom Starodoj is continuing his efforts to produce championship teams in basketball and volleyball for the remaining weeks. It should be pointed out that the Phi tag football team was crowned campus champions this past fall. Jerry Benson is the Number One athlete in the house at present, holding down the starting forward spot on the college basketball team. Steve Hart, fully recovered from his fractured collar bone, is once again playing squash for the college team. Hod Moses is also representing Phi on the squash team. Tim Johnston and Robert Fay are on the swimming team while Charles Peterson is holding down a position on the hockey club. Dave Heuer represents Phi as one of the members of the Amherst ski team.

Phi has started its "new look" program for 1954 by completely repainting the bar room as well as laying new linoleum. The ladies' room was redecorated also. House managers Hank Carter and John Ickler are currently making plans for painting the exterior of the house this spring.

Three Brothers are married: John Ickler, Lee Hildreth, and John Albrecht.

Finally, all the Brothers are proud to announce that François Steeg, our likeable foreign student, will be initiated into the Chapter within a few weeks—H. BRUCE FLEGAL.

Chi Attains Quota Set by College

BRUCE MATHESON, Alpha
Dartmouth College

WITH the initiation of 27 pledges, Chi reached the capacity of 65 set by the College. Chi's rush chairman, George Voss, exceeded himself in combing through the Sophomore Class to come up with the group that we pledged. Much credit is in order to the energetic rushing committee of Haynes, Torella, Hotchkiss, Kelley, and Spitzli, who aided Chairman Voss.

The winter activities were given a vigorous start with a new slate of officers headed by Bruce Matheson, Alpha; Robert M. Boyd, Beta; P. H. Mannes, Gamma; Bill DeCesare, Delta; Bill Cassell, Zeta; and George Snelson, Epsilon.

The house has been undergoing a magnificent renovation under a committee headed by Brothers Voss and Hoeffer. These men are doing a tremendous job toward making the lodge the most livable house on campus. The two recently donated a new divan for Memorial Library. Though the Brothers in the Chapter have exhausted every means for the present program of renovation, there is not enough money to cover some sorely needed repairs in the plumbing. The present facilities are overtaxed to the point of breakdown. Alumni are urged to add to the fund graciously established by the parents of Bill DeCesare to modernize the existing facilities and to finish the unfinished lavatory in the East Wing. The billiards room has been graced by a large print donated with the compliments of Mr. Fred Busch. The print depicts a gripping scene out of the Old West—"Custer's Last Stand."

Chi intramurals have been given a terrific shot in the arm by the activity of Athletic Director Dick Cooper. Brother Cooper has guided the hoopsters through a fine season marked by a 33-32 victory over neighboring Alpha Delt in the annual Bloodbath. With this writing Chi needs only a victory over Pi Lam to take the league title. A strong hockey team is representing the Chapter led by Brothers Boyd and Lundstrom, the latter being named best-dressed interfraternity athlete of the year.

The living room of the lodge is the focal point of campus music lovers for it is the only spot on campus where the First Piano Quartet can perform. Chi boasts four pianos in the living room. The latest, a Steinway Grand, was obtained for the house through the efforts of John Keniley '52. Also on the musical side, "Easy" Ed Hennessey has organized the smoothest college sextet in the country featuring Bones Dabney on the six-string banjo. For the Chi Carnival Ball, Ed is adding a clarinet, soprano sax, and the long-awaited debut of ex-Alpha Skip Grinton's valve-trombone.

The forthcoming Chi Chatter will give a complete résumé of the activities of the various Brothers and Alumni. Any Alumnus not receiving his copy should notify the Chapter at once.

Congratulations are due to Stan and Cynthia Bell for providing Chi with its 66th active, Stephen Bell, on Dec. 20.—BILL CASSELL.

Psi Brothers Win Campus Honors

SAMUEL C. NEWMAN
Alpha
Lehigh University

THE fall elections at Psi were held on Nov. 30 and the following were elected to office: Samuel C. Newman, Alpha; Samuel Furiness, Beta; Carlton S. Clark, Gamma; James R. Tillotson, Delta; Robert B. Ring, Zeta; Donald E. Sooy, Epsilon; and Ronald L. Keenhold, Asst. Delta. Alpha Newman and Beta Furiness appointed Brothers Waclawski, Marquardt, Ebeling, Maginn, and Mazai-ka as the chairmen of the social, scholastic, house and grounds, rushing, alumni, and athletic committees, respectively.

During the month of November the outside of the house was given the "new look." The trim was painted a dark green and the stucco covered with a buff colored compound. It was only through the coöperation of Briarfield and the Brothers that this was made possible. The finishing touches were added when Brother Waclawski's father, Mr. Joseph Waclawski, donated new copper gutters and leaders to replace the old ones which leaked very badly. We cannot thank him enough for his generosity.

This year Lehigh University started a new precedent by sponsoring a "Parents' Weekend" on Nov. 14. The parents of all students were invited to a buffet luncheon in Grace Hall and, after lunch, to attend the Carnegie Tech football game. Following the game there was an open house at the chapter house.

On Lafayette Weekend the Chapter entertained some 250 Alumni, parents, and friends included in which was Rho Chapter. The gaiety of the event was somewhat diminished by the fact that Lafayette defeated Lehigh for the first time in the last four years.

House Party Weekend, Oct. 30-Nov. 1, again proved to be the highlight of the semester. The Formal Dance, which had as its theme "Moulin Rouge," featured the orchestras of Stan Kenton and George Sommers. For the second House party in succession, Psi had the pleasure of having a member of the Queen's Court as its guest when Jean Wallace was presented with the honor. Jean was accompanied by Brother Barthold. The Lehigh-Buffalo game, on Saturday, was handily won by Lehigh. The game was followed by an open house, dinner, and a "Communist Party" after dinner. The social calendar for the year came to a close with a Stag Christmas Party on Dec. 17.

In the "sports' light" are Ronnie Keenhold, Dick Marquardt, and Bill Ebeling on the swimming team and Carlton Clark on the cross country team.

Scholastically, the Chapter hasn't been in better shape. Daniel F. Daly was initiated into the brotherhood on Nov. 17. Brothers Tillotson and Castor were elected to Cyanide, the junior leadership honorary; Brother Ring to IIME, and Brother Castor to AKΨ.

As the end of the semester approaches, the Brothers are anxiously awaiting formal rushing which lasts from Feb. 12 to the 25th. Any recommendations from Alumni will be welcomed. On Friday, Feb. 26, at 6 o'clock the formal pledging ceremony will take place. We would like to make this the climax of a year's work. We are cordially inviting all of the Alumni back for this important occasion. Grand Alpha Carl Gladfelter will also be present, if possible. Try your best to attend if you can arrange to do so. The annual Briarfield meeting will be held on the following day, Saturday, Feb. 27.

News from recent graduates: Walter J. Trillhaase was married to Valerie Jelene on Nov. 14. John F. Metz was married to Bonnie Moore on Dec. 20. During the semester Brothers Trillhaase, Metz, Lund, Lebo, Huester, Gesner, Sargeant, and Gill visited the house. It was good to see them again and makes us wish that more of you would drop in when you get a chance.—ROBERT B. RING.

Since at last the patio has been finished after so many years, the pledges had to find a new project for this year. At present they are planning to build a brick wall in front of the house. The first floor of the chapter house has to be repainted and it has been hinted that pledge labor will be utilized.

On Dec. 19, Brother Drake was married, followed on Jan. 17 by Brother Truitt. Brothers Fowler and Fine both have announced their engagements and both plan to be married sometime in March. Ted McClellan has a son.—JOHN REID, JR.

Alpha-Alphas Eat Steak; Pledges Mush

JACK STILWELL, Alpha
University of North Carolina

ALPHA-ALPHA was honored recently by a brief, enjoyable visit from National Director Judge Luther Z. Rosser. The Judge was met at the airport and driven to the house where he met most of the Brothers and pledges, and, incidentally, had his portrait done by an itinerant caricaturist. A banquet was arranged, with some of the local Alumni present, after which the Judge inquired into the state of the Chapter and heard reports on many aspects of its affairs. The banquet took place in the newly decorated dining room, which was strikingly redone just prior to the Judge's arrival. The kitchen was also redecorated, thus completing an ambitious house improvement program initiated this fall.

A week later the dining room was the scene of a unique "steak-mush" dinner designed to sparkplug Alpha-Alpha's scholarship program. The idea was that the pledges as a group were to compete against the Brothers as a group, the group with the higher scholastic average at mid-term to have steaks for dinner, and the group with the lower average to eat mush. The Brothers won and enjoyed their steaks as much as they did the spectacle of the pledges, arrayed in bibs and tuckers, tucking in large bowls of mush. Congratulations are due Scholarship Chairman Neil Satterfield for originating this fine idea. Another scholastic asset to this Chapter is Gordon C. Crowell, who was initiated into ΦBK , and to whom congratulations are also in order.

We congratulate Bill Prouty, a graduate of last spring, who was recently married to Mary Margaret Marsh, a Duke graduate. Among the other Alumni heard from were Ensign Albert C. Moore, our Alpha of last spring, currently stationed in New York, and Ensign Max Faulkner, now stationed in Charleston, S. C.

In the field of activities, Neil Satterfield, Lt. Colonel of Air Force ROTC, was initiated into Scabbard and Blade, as well as the Arnold Air Society, and Alpha Stilwell was also initiated into Scabbard and Blade. On the political scene we were pleased to see Jack Stevens elected leader of the now-incumbent University Party, which primarily represents the fraternity element at Carolina.

Alpha-Alpha gave its traditional Orphans' Party just before the holidays and its great success with the children increased our enjoyment of this worthwhile project.—MIKE SOPER.

Alpha-Chi's Alpha Receives Award

FRED JENNINGS
Alpha
Ohio Wesleyan

At the recent election, the following men were selected to hold down key positions at the "Oaks" through the winter: Fred Jennings, Alpha; Dick Thomas, Beta; Earl Spiller, Gamma; Ralph Schlag, reelected Delta; Tom Mills, retained as Zeta (one-year term); and Roger Baker, Epsilon. Shortly after the election, Brother Jennings was elected vice president of Interfraternity Council.

This year's Homecoming was quite a success. The Alumni turned out in force in response to an increased effort to arouse their interest. In the competition for the best Homecoming display, Alpha-Chi placed second. At the Homecoming banquet, Dr. Milton Brown '94, our oldest active Alumnus, donated his jeweled pin to be awarded each year to the man who has done the most for the Chapter. The first recipient of the pin was Fred Jennings.

Several evenings this fall there have been some new faces at the "Oaks." It is the result of a new policy whereby selected faculty members have been invited to the house for an evening meal. After the meal, members of the Chapter have a chance to become better acquainted with them in informal chats and "bull sessions."

The annual Campus Chest variety show saw $\text{X}\Phi$'s team up with $\Phi\Gamma\Delta$ to give a modern interpretation of Homer's Iliad. Greek warriors appeared clad in ROTC uniforms and the whole thing was a success.—TOM MILLS.

Alpha Delta Needs Rushing Help

FRANCIS W.
FINLEY, Jr.,
Alpha
Penn State University

UNCLE SAM and financial difficulties hit hard at Alpha Delta this fall as six men had to move out. Two others left the chapter house for the bliss of married life: Ben Throop '55 and Dick Headlee '54.

As we moved into the semester under the guiding hand of Alpha Tom Farrell, we could see the improvement in attitude towards the Chapter and the improvement of our scholarship take hold during the fall months. A big change in the financial set-up with Charles Stoddart '31, taking over as financial adviser as well as holding down the job of The House Association Secretary-Treasurer position has helped us complete some of the much-needed repairs to the house. A new stove was installed over the Christmas holidays and the work on our main second floor bathroom was completed late in November.

Nov. 30 ushered in the new officers for the spring term: Francis W. Finley, Alpha; Robert Broomfield, Beta; Donald Curtis, Gamma; Gordon Carpenter, Delta; William Roberts, Epsilon; and James Dunlap remained as Zeta. The new Executive Council is maintaining the same permanent committee system which Brother Farrell installed during his term as Alpha in the fall. There were a few changes in the hierarchy of the committee system as far as which officer the committees would be under, but the same theme "participation means interest" still prevails. A new system of bookkeeping for the chapter was initiated by Brothers Stoddart '31 and Finley '54 while he was Delta. The new book simplifies the job which three books did in the past.

In an informal survey taken among the sororities, it was found that XΦ was rated by the girls as one of the top fraternities out of 51 as far as desirability for dating.

At Homecoming time, Alpha Delta came through with flying colors in the Homecoming Display Contest by winning first prize for the second time in three years. In our "off" year we tied for third. There was a large influx of alumni for the week end and we rounded off a very successful and congenial house meeting with a dance in the evening.

Moving into the spring semester, Alpha Delta is short of men and much of our time will be spent in a very active rushing semester. Alpha Finley has shown a very capable hand in leading the Chapter so far and the improvement still continues. The atmosphere around the house is good and a definite step in the right direction towards a better scholastic rating seems in order this semester.—JAMES A. DUNLAP.

THE Combat Infantrymen Badge for excellent performance of duty under fire in Korea recently was awarded to Pvt. Alex M. Crawford, Eta Delta '54, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Crawford, 549 Cherry Ave., San Bruno, Cal., while serving with the 5th Regimental Combat Team. Pvt. Crawford, a clerk in the public information office at Regimental Headquarters, has served in Korea since February, 1953.

Beta Delta Gets New Home

ROBERT A. WANAMAKER
Alpha
University of Washington

As this letter is being written for CHAKETT, Beta Delta passes another milestone on the path of progress. Since this school year began, Beta Deltans have been working, with the whole-hearted support of our Alumni and the National Officers, toward obtaining a home for the Chapter. This effort has resulted in obtaining a new chapter house. It is located at 5048 17th Ave. N. E., just north of the University campus. Once again, Beta Delta has a home.

Obtaining a chapter house has not been the only activity of the Chapter. Pledged through informal rushing during autumn quarter were Bob and Bill Diehl and Daril Hahn. Successful joint meetings were held with the Alumni Association. These Alumni-Active meetings gave actives and pledges opportunity to meet with alumni and benefit from their experience. These meetings will certainly be continued and a cordial invitation is extended to all XΦs in the Seattle area to attend. If you have not received notices of the meetings held during 1953, please write and give us your address.

December saw Brother Bill Conger commissioned an Ensign in the Navy and Brothers Don Youatt and Bob Wannamaker commissioned Second Lieutenants in the Air Force.—BOB WANNAMAKER, Alpha.

Gamma Delta Homecoming

ORION CARLSON, Alpha
University of Minnesota

GAMMA DELTA received a great loss over the Christmas holidays when the Alpha, John Thomson, was called into service in the Air Force. We will miss John's leadership, but the competent Beta, Orion Carlson, has taken over the Alpha position. John, always handy with the saw and hammer, left his imprint on the house in the form of the knotty pine walls and beds he made, the new permanent desks he made and installed in many of the rooms last quarter, and other improvements and repairs too numerous to mention.

Last quarter's Homecoming was a great success. Minnesota beat Indiana in the football game and XΦ had its most enjoyable party at the Ryan Hotel in St. Paul. We were happily surprised at the attendance of the Alumni, for more than twice the number of merrymakers as we had planned on showed up. The afternoon of the party the Mothers' Club served coffee and homemade cake to the Chapter, the Alumni, and the guests attending the football game. Other parties held last quarter included a pledge costume party, two chapter picnics, a chapter stag, and several dancing parties at the house.

Chi Phi didn't fare so well in intramural football this year; in fact the only game we won was by forfeit. But our basketball team did very well in the fall quarter warm-up round and advanced to the quarter finals before being beaten by three points in a hotly contested game.

Two of the pledges, Ken Thomson and Guy Cherp, starred on the freshman varsity football team and Coach Wes Fesler indicated that the two future XΦs showed great promise for next year's Golden Gophers.

The Chapter wishes to welcome back Don Grimes, an active who has just finished a hitch in the Army and is now continuing his education in the Journalism School. Although he has been back only a week Don has taken an active interest in our rushing program and our social planning committee here at the house.

We wish also to thank the Mothers' Club for all the help they have been giving us. New draperies, pillows, preserves, and a heavy-duty toaster are among their gifts to the house and now they are planning to raise money to reupholster the living room furniture. It is always a high point on the social calendar when our mothers come to dinner and our social committee is busy planning such a dinner for this quarter.—GIRARD VANDERCAR.

Delta Delta Has Rewarding Term

GERALD TERREAU, Alpha

MIGHTY proud are Delta Deltans of two shiny trophies added to our crowded mantel, and one near-trophy. Our shiniest and biggest is an award for the "Most Beautiful" float entered in UC-

Delta Deltans took the Sigma Kappas to Zuma Beach on a fall exchange party

When Delta Delta built a prize-winning Homecoming Parade float and recorded the night's building in pictures, we thought you would like to see how the Los Angeles boys did it. "Safari to the 'C'" was the theme of the decorations for the game between UCLA and Cal. Delta Delta called their entry, "Big Game Killer." Little Joe Bruin atop the elephant, trampled Cal's bear. It took 700-man hours to complete "the most beautiful" float. The designer was Ron Patterson, shown in white trousers in the center picture at the top. Built on a frame of wood and chicken wire, colored crepe paper was used to build the float. Note that night turned to day before the float was wheeled out of the vacant lot across from the unfinished medical center. Even after it was taken to the parade ground finishing touches were added. No rain fell!

LA's fabulous Homecoming parade—an event which has come to be as popular and well attended as the Rose Parade. With near 100% coöperation, Brothers and pledges joined forces to construct the crêpe paper and wire mesh masterpiece, captioned "Big Game Killer" in keeping with the theme "Safari to the C," which commemorated the forthcoming football game between UCLA and Cal. (P.S. We won.) Eighty per cent of the house rallied to answer the annual campus blood drive's call for donations and for our spirit in the campaign we copped the sweepstakes trophy, topping 75 other fraternities and sororities. We placed third in raising funds for UCLA's Campus Chest campaign; and our candidate for "Santa Claus" came close to winning that pseudonym.

At the first meeting following Christmas recess officers for the coming term were elected: Gerald Terreau, Alpha; Walter Doucett, Beta; John Frey, Gamma; Ray Buechler, Delta; Doug Neilsen, Epsilon.

Socially speaking, St. Nick was toasted at a pre-Christmas party at Brother Burns' Beverly Hills home; and the New Year was greeted at a joint party given by our Chapter with the local ΘX chapter. And a post-mortem welcomed the end of classes for the fall term. New and old members and their guests gathered at a most successful Mothers' Club dinner in December. At a profitable rummage sale, the ladies netted $200. Our faithful housemother, Mrs. Mary Donovan, was bid goodbye at a reception given in her honor, as she retired after spending many eventful and long-to-be-remembered years with us.

We congratulate and sadly bid farewell to five outstanding Brothers who donned caps and gowns: Chuck Krecklow, Marv McClay, Ron Patterson, John Sugars and Earl Watson. Hearty congratulations also to Sparks Medal Winner Dick Turnblade who graduated with honors and goes on to grad school.

Slated as the next big event is initiation of seven pledges who made up one of the outstanding pledge classes in Delta Delta's history.—LEE BURNS.

Epsilon Delta Has 12 Pledges

DAVID JABUSCH
Alpha
Oregon State College

EPSILON DELTA is still placing the emphasis on rushing, and with pledging being carried on as it is we should have our house filled to capacity by the end of the year. The new pledges are Fred Rauch, Rainier; Lutz Muenster from Germany; Howard Williams, Salem. We have pledged 12 since the first of the year. Our annual pledge dinner dance was extremely successful this year with 100% participation. Our theme was "Chakett," and for decorations we used hack paddles, pledge paddles, beer mugs, and various other fraternity articles. The main attraction in the decorations was a huge "chakett" made of crepe paper which covered one entire wall of our living room. We also had a fireside, an open house, and a Christmas serenade to round out the social schedule.

The football team didn't do too well this year. We won one game and lost three. The outlook for our basketball season is very bright since we have several outstanding players. Our bowling team has been visiting the alleys quite frequently, so they should also be in good shape for the coming season. We also have several skiers in the house who will turn out for intramural skiing this winter.

Homecoming was also very successful, and we got a chance to meet many of our old Alumni, and to see many whom we knew.

Our Mothers' Club recently gave us a beautiful cut-glass punch bowl to replace the old one. We were all very pleased with the gift.—RODNEY CANUTT.

Eta Delta Grade Average Raised

CHARLES POSS, Alpha USC

ETA DELTA begins the spring semester with a new slate of officers: Chuck Poss, Alpha; Gil Stephenson, Beta; Bob Warren, Gamma; Dick Crowley, Delta.

This last semester Eta Delta is proud of its scholastic improvement over the past several semesters. Our position among the 32 national fraternities on campus is second place.

As in previous years the high point of our social program was the annual Winter Formal held at the Beverly Hills Hotel. A pre-dance party was given at the home of Hal Atwood.

Outside of the Chapter Brothers have been active in extracurricular activities. Jack Purcell is treasurer of the IFC and a member of the Commerce Council. Gil Stephenson is president of Wesley Club. Hal Atwood is vice president of $\Delta K \Psi$. Ron Young is a member of Knights. Phil Bataglia is debating and chairman of the Frosh-Soph Brawl.

It will be of interest to Eta Delta Alumni to know that Lt. Col. William Foster is now stationed at the embassy in Oslo; George Moore is in the Cairo Embassy in Egypt; Ray Scott is director of entertainment for the 8th Army Air Corps in Stuttgart, Germany; Lt. R. N. Crawford is stationed in Hawaii; Ralph Capolungo received a pastorate in Chester, Mass.—GIL STEPHENSON.

Theta Delta Orphans' Party

CORAM LAMB, Alpha
University of Florida

THETA DELTA has one pronounced success story to mention—Joe Everett has just been tapped as one of the three men from the entire campus to be selected for ΦBK . While we cannot report the addition of any intramural trophies on the mantel, we are currently leading for the sportsmanship trophy which we won last year. This week end has seen an inspiring challenge basketball game between the Brothers and the pledges, in which the Brothers managed to outlast the pledges with the result that the latter were given the opportunity of furnishing a small keg of beverage.

Incidentally, our pledge class has been enlarged considerably by the addition of Edmund M. Barry and Thomas T. Mayo, St. Petersburg; Fred M. Cason and Robert M. Wilbur, Plant City; Carl A. Eggert, Dade City; Norman D. Ladrie, West Hollywood; Richard A. Moore, Eau Gallie; Charlie Walsh, Panama City; Alan Entz, Sebring; Joseph Flood, Yulee; Marcus Stephens, Bartow; William Elwell, Avon Park; Arthur Blaikie, Lutz; Lee DeFranco, Tampa; and Jack Dalton Bishop, Miami. The chapter rolls have been increased by the initiation of Chuck Grosjean and Charlie Best.

The social committee has had several pronouncedly successful parties, thanks to Chairman Herbie Sells. Again we followed our tradition of having a Christmas party for some of the town's children. We were very pleased to receive a pencilled Christmas card from one of the little girls attending, on which she laboriously printed, "I liked the tea set I liked the candy too Thank you."

The Chapter would like to go on record as appreciating the number of Brothers who have remembered us by stopping by when passing through town even if only to bless us out. The number this fall has been unusually high, and that's the way we like it. The welcome mat is out.

And now, as a new semester is approaching fast, we have turned over the task of guiding Theta Delta to a bigger and better year to a new crop of officers: Coram Lamb, Alpha; Donald Hardy, Beta; Charles Grosjean, Gamma; Ken Dufore, Delta; Charles Best, Epsilon.—SNICK OGDEN.

Eta Trails Deadline

ALEX S. HOPKINS, Alpha
University of Georgia

WINTER quarter elections were held in January, and Brother Alex S. Hopkins, Madison, was reelected to his post of Alpha; Jack Henderson, Marietta, was reelected Beta and house manager; and John Wilkins, Athens, was reelected Zeta. Newly elected officers were Richard Trotter, Atlanta, as Gamma; A. G. Bond, Savannah, as Delta; David Bishop, Toccoa, as Epsilon; and Jim Cutcliff, Atlanta, as Pledgemaster.

Our annual Christmas dance was a gala affair having brought together many old friends and alumni. George Miller and his band furnished the music. Our Social Committee is very busy now making plans for a house party and several on campus parties for this quarter.

Formal initiation was held on Sunday, January 24, at which 17 boys were initiated. We also wish to announce our most recent pledges; they are Edward Nicholson, Jr., and Don Shuman, Atlanta; and Jack Prather, Athens.

Much discussion has taken place during the past few months regarding the property in back of the Chapter house which is for sale. During the fall quarter the local Alumni held a meeting at the house regarding this matter, and now plans are being completed to purchase this property. This will enhance the value of our present property and allow ample room for future expansion.

We are glad to have Brother Glen Chason back with us after a tour of duty with Uncle Sam, but we are sorry to lose Brother P. B. Burdett and Pledge Larry Schiech who went into the Army; and Pledges Bob Standford and Shack Wimbish who went into the Air Force. Congratulations are in store for Brother Jim McCormick, Atlanta, who was married during the Christmas holidays.

We cordially invite all Chi Phis, when in our vicinity, to drop by and visit with us.—JOHN WILKINS, III.

THE EDUCATIONAL TRUST

The Fraternity invites contributions from its Alumni to the Chi Phi Educational Trust. Through contributions to its Educational Trust the Fraternity is building a permanent endowment. The income from the endowment is used to help Chapters and active members in worthy endeavors, particularly in assisting in their housing problems.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THIS FUND ARE TAX EXEMPT

NOTE: Make your contributions to the Chi Phi Educational Trust for 1954 now and mail to 312 Connally Building, Atlanta 3, Georgia.
