FROM CONNECTICUT

W. H. HOGAN, A-T'18
Michigan

BROTHER HOGAN, now retired, served thirty years as the personnel manager of the J. L. Hudson Co., Detroit, one of the world's largest and finest department stores.

During his business career he actively worked on the Detroit Community Chest fund drives, and served on the Executive Committee of the Detroit Chapter of the American Red Cross for fifteen years.

He was educated in New York State, entered the University of Michigan in 1914 where he was a member of "Monks" the forerunner to Chi Phi at Michigan. He fought in World War I as a field artillery 2nd Lieutenant, and spent eleven months overseas.

He has long been associated with Chi Phi alumni activity in the Detroit area and played a major roll in the success of the several Congresses' held in Detroit.

The Chi Phi Chakett is published in September, December, February, and April by The Chi Phi Fraternity, 3330 Peachtree Road, N.E., Room 550, Atlanta, Georgia 30326. Second class postage paid at Atlanta, Georgia. Subscription rate, $5.00 per year. Single copies $1.50.

THE FUTURE . . . $500,000

THE Chi Phi Educational Trust's announcement of a campaign to raise $500,000 has been received with acclaim and a "let's get on with it." Officially the campaign started February 1, 1966, however the preparatory work has been under way since last November.

The Trustees propose to increase the assets of the Trust to approximately $650,000 by 1968. The increased funds will be used to strengthen the posture of the fraternity by implementing new programs and the extension of existing ones.

The plans include:

(1) A proposal to establish a "chapter orientation and counseling program" using paid faculty personnel to assist the new student in properly orienting to the ways of the school and the development of proper study habits, (2) a library enrichment program whereby each chapter will receive annual financial assistance towards the establishment and maintenance of a chapter reference library, (3) a series of grants to selected chapters each year to help them create new or improve existing study facilities, and (4) the development of a larger student loan fund to meet the mounting requests for loans from Brothers.

Equally important to the future well being of Chi Phi is the fact that the increase in the funds available for investment will provide an available source of mortgage money to the chapters for both new housing and the renovation of existing facilities. At the present, all available funds are "out at loan" to either chapters or student Chi Phi's.

Chi Phi was one of the first fraternities to establish an Educational Trust, and until the last few years had never requested the brotherhood to support programs of aid to students and academic institutions as envisioned by the founders of the Trust.

Chi Phi has let many fraternities, both larger and smaller, surpass it. The Chi Psi Fraternity, with 28 chapters, has an Educational Trust with assets in

M. M. HARRIS, ThD '29
Missouri

Brother Harris is the President and Treasurer of the C. J. Harris Lumber Company, Overland, Missouri. He graduated from the University of Missouri although he entered Chi Phi through the University of Florida local fraternity which became Theta Delta in 1935. He was initiated into Chi Phi by the Sigma Chapter in 1935.

He has two sons, both of whom are members of other fraternities since they attended schools at which Chi Phi had no chapter.

In addition to operating his lumber yard business, he is a member of the Board of Directors, St. Louis Fire and Marine Insurance Co., former member of Board of Visitors, University of Missouri, and former President of the University of Missouri Alumni Association.

Naturally Brother Harris feels Chi Phi should have a chapter at the University of Missouri.

J. B. HILL, I.D. '60
Indiana

Brother Hill was a charter member of the Indiana chapter and is the youngest man serving as a campaign chairman.

He is single, resides and works in Marion, Indiana where he is associated with the Fisher Body Division of General Motors as a labor standard observer. Immediately following graduation he served two years as a junior officer in the Signal Corps Army Reserve as a 1st Lieutenant.

Brother Hill leads a busy life serving as member of the Marion Salvation Army Advisory Board, a member of the Board of Directors of Marion J. C.'s, a member of DeMolay Advisory Council, and participates in Masonic and Shrine activities.

J. M. COOK, ED '31
Oregon

Brother Cook is associated with the Pacific Title Insurance Co. of Portland. He is manager of the Hawthorne Branch. Following graduation from Oregon State University he obtained an L.L.B. degree from Northwestern College of Law.

His membership includes the Visitor's Service Committee of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, Portland Beautification Committee, Portland Civic Theater, Portland Symphony Society, Portland Rose Festival and the Portland Art Association.

The Oregon Chairman has long been active in Chi Phi affairs in Oregon. Once again he answers the call.

excess of $2,000,000. The income permits Chi Psi to offer one or more annual scholarships to each chapter. It provides the funds necessary to operate an annual national leadership development school, and a chapter library enrichment program which the chapter officers attend. Sigma Chi, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Kappa Sigma have similar programs including chapter library enrichment plans. Thus it is to maintain and provide similar opportunities and experiences for Chi Phis that the Council and the Trustees are urging every Chi Phi to but remember the values of Chi Phi membership and give, that they will be preserved and extended.

The campaign is headed by John E. Oliver, President of the Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company of Atlanta. All of the Trustees are officially participating. Freeman Strickland, Vice-President of the First National Bank of Atlanta; Rutherford L. Ellis, Chairman, Lipscomb, Ellis Company, Atlanta, and E. Bates Block, Attorney, Atlanta are directing the Georgia and Atlanta campaign. Henry Gildner, partner, Manley, Bennett and Co., Detroit is assisting with the Detroit and Michigan campaign.

A large complement of campaign workers have volunteered to head state and area campaigns. The local campaigns will not all start at the same time, although it is expected that all members of the fraternity will be contacted by July 1966. It is hoped that a personal call will be made upon you by another Chi Phi. He will solicit your gift and of course is prepared to explain all, or any phase, of the Trust and its program. Those Chi Phis not living in or near major cities, or large pockets of Chi Phis, will probably be reached only by the mail campaign.

The campaign is divided into three phases:

1. The Undergraduate (chapter) campaign
2. The parents and friends of the fraternity campaign

3. The alumni campaign.

The first phase which was imminently successful is described on page 3. The second phase will take place the middle of February 1966.

The alumni campaign will be divided into a personal solicitation program and a direct mail campaign. Both phases will be underway in February 1966.

Space precludes a story of each campaign worker however, this and succeeding issues of the Chakett will name some of the men who are determined to make the Trust fund a vital thing to the fraternity.

Many additional campaign workers are needed. The Trustees would particularly like to hear from any Brothers who would like to help. Please write Mr. John E. Oliver, Chairman, Chi Phi Educational Trust, Suite 550, 3330 Peachtree Road, N. E., Atlanta, Georgia 30326, to obtain more information.

D. C. MARTIN, ZD'55
Connecticut

Brother Martin is a charter member of the Connecticut Chapter and is a past president of the Zeta Delta Alumni Association. For the past few years he has served as the chapter advisor.

Dale, his wife Janet, and four children live in Vernon, Connecticut, a suburb of Hartford. He is a career life underwriter with the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia and a member of its Leaders Association and Milestone Club. In addition to his fraternity work he is active in the University of Connecticut Alumni Association and church.

A. J. JORDAN, A-T'30
North and South Dakota

A. J. Jordan is President and General Manager of the Jordan Millwork Co. of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Jim joined the company in 1935 after working in the field of printing and newspaper advertising promotion.

The Jordans are extremely proud of their company's achievements. Today its modern plant of 90,000 square feet is a composite of the finest millwork wholesale warehouse and factory combination in the United States. In addition to their main plant they have operations in Sioux City, Iowa and Watertown, South Dakota.

Jim is married and has a son. His older brother Martin is a member of the Pi Chapter, Iowa State.

W. H. JORDAN, A-T'32
North and South Dakota

William H. Jordan is Secretary and Treasurer of the Jordan Millwork Co., Sioux Falls, South Dakota. He and his Brother Jim have teamed together to make the company one of the largest in their field. Bill joined the company in 1936 after spending four years with the International Harvester Company.

Bill is married and has a daughter. The family resides in Sioux Falls.

Undergraduate Giving to Trust Exceeds Expectations

THE Chi Phi Educational Trust "For the Future — $500,000" campaign is off to an excellent start. The Trustees set a quota of one dollar for each undergraduate member, and set the wheels in motion, early in December 1965, to raise approximately $2,000. Through January 1966, twenty-five (25) chapters and colonies contributed $2,499.48. It is now expected that the forty chapters and colonies will contribute over $3,000 to the drive when all have reported.

When the campaign plans were formulated it was agreed that because all funds received would be put to work implementing programs and activities of direct benefit to the chapters that strong undergraduate support was needed before any contributions could be solicited from alumni. The actives have not only given beyond expectations, they have set a pace that will be difficult for alumni to match.

Eta, University of Georgia, leads in the giving with 83 members contributing $332.00, Alpha, University of Virginia, is second with $209.00, contributed by 57 members.

Beta's housemother, although not called upon, gave $5.00 as the hat was being passed. The list of those giving $5.00 or over also includes the Arizona's colony's famed mascot "Chi Phi Squidde." No one is sure just how he came by the money but it's apparent he is a smart dog.

In addition to their individual gifts many of the undergraduate brothers indicated willingness that their parents be asked to support the campaign. A letter will be sent to those parents about the middle of February outlining the Educational Trust's program and asking for contributions to support the work.

Following are the chapters who have contributed and the total amount received. Also included is a list of those undergraduates who donated $5.00 or more. The April Chakett will list the remaining chapter gifts and the final totals for phase "one" of the campaign.

C. L. HUSBANDS, ATHx'34
Colorado

Brother C. L. Husbands of Littleton, Colorado is a Realty Specialist with the Veterans Administration at Denver, Colorado. Prior to his present career he served in the Air Corps retiring in 1946 with the grade of Colonel. In 1963 he completed 30 years of Military reserve participation.

His chief interests are young people and he is working actively with all phases of Boy Scout activity, the Order of DeMolay and the Order of Rainbow for girls. He is married and has a son and daughter, the former having graduated from Amherst and the latter is completing her Senior year at Colorado State University.

Minnesota

Brother Strommen, his wife Sandra and three children reside in St. Louis Park, Minnesota, where he is Executive Manager of the St. Louis Park Chamber of Commerce.

Previous to his employment with the Chamber of Commerce, Strommen was plant Superintendent of the Republic Creosoting Co. Prior to that he had a three year tour with the Air Force as a Nuclear Weapons Supply Officer.

Gene served in almost all the Chapter offices as an undergraduate and recently completed a five year term as a director of the Gamma Delta alumni association, during which time he served as president for two years. In accepting the assignment of State Chairman he stated "I look forward to a sincere effort from the alumni from Minnesota to carry through a respectable 'For the Future—$500,000' campaign."

1824 • 1858 • 1860

As the campaign gets underway the Trustees have announced the establishment of three categories of gift giving to honor donors now, and in the future. The founding dates of the Three orders of Chi Phi will be used to symbolize the extent of contribution. Those giving $1,000 or more to the Trust will be named to the "1824 Order", those giving $500 to $999 will be members of the "1858 Order", and those giving $100 to $499 will be named to the "1860 Order". Regular giving over a period of years will permit all Brothers to be named to one or more of the orders.

The following Brothers gave $5.00 or more to the "FOR THE FUTURE – $500,000 campaign:

OCS Program Reorganized

Why wait to be Drafted?

LET'S FACE IT, say the professional soldiers who designed the U. S. Army Officers Candidate School program, it does seem unrealistic for a college graduate or a college senior to simply wait and be drafted.

That's why mobile teams of the new Action Army have begun visiting college campuses across the nation. These teams—composed of officers and enlisted men of the U. S. Army Recruiting Command—are completely equipped with the latest information on the benefits of the reorganized OCS program. They have with them facts kits and informational films pointing out the practicability of enlisting under the OCS program. The teams intend to talk to anyone—whether a college senior or a college graduate in the area of the university or college visited—who is interested in the advantages of this new program.

One of the new features of the program is that now any qualified college graduate or college senior may earn an officer's commission without any previous ROTC required. There was a time when only the ROTC lads could get into this program. The key to the OCS program is that the Army guarantees an applicant will be enrolled in Officers Candidate School providing he passes the requirements. Admittedly, they don't guarantee to graduate you as an officer, but then neither did your college or university guarantee you a diploma when you began the freshman year.

If you've got it, says the Army, you'll be commissioned a second lieutenant when the training is completed.

One of the best features of the program—according to the volume of information available from the Army Officers Opportunity Program, Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va.—is that there is a chance of serving in many capacities after graduation. A graduate of Army OCS may serve in the Infantry, Artillery, Armor, Engineers, Signal, Ordnance, Quartermaster, Transportation, Military Police, Chemical, Intelligence, Finance or Medical Service Corps.

The requirements are fairly simple, say the men who designed the new program. A candidate must be between the ages of 18½ and 27, a citizen of the United States, a graduate of or a senior in a college or university recognized by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and must pass a mental and physical examination.

No one on the mobile teams is going to tell you the officer course will be a snap. A candidate can expect long hours—mostly outdoors with little classroom instruction and with a great deal of pressure. This is an exclusive, demanding program for young men who are aiming high and who believe in devotion to duty.

Some of the features not generally known are that an application may be submitted through an Army recruiter or one of the new mobile information teams at any time during the senior year of the student. The graduate may submit an application at any time. The enlistment under the Officers Candidate School is for two years in the Regular Army. A candidate also agrees to remain on active duty at least two years after receiving an officer's commission. All this simply means

“And One for Johnny Ring”

A. BLAIR KNAPP, President, Denison University

I said that I was not going to talk about education, but I must make a comment or two because some of the characteristics of higher education in the United States today provide the basis of some of the concerns about you to which I referred. We all know that there is a frenzied attempt these days to “gear up” our institutions of higher education to meet the challenge of the times, both in quantity of students and the indispensable quality of the job to be done. Unfortunately, we are forced to attempt this through crash programs to make up for years of neglect. There is on the part of millions of our people a kind of blind faith that, if more and more of our college age youth may someday sit where you sit now on this occasion, all will be well with our world. Frankly, I’m not so sure . . . all is not perfect in our colleges and universities.

What I am about to say are generalizations. There are many exceptions, but my own experience, plus the stress of the professional literature, bears out the fact that they are all too true.

Let me quote Mr. Henry Prentice, who some years ago was President and later Chairman of the Board of The Armstrong Cork Company. In addition to his brilliant career as an industrial leader, he was in every sense a scholar. “We have been so long developing our physical resources that we have compelled our schools and colleges to concentrate on teaching facts on which we could make a living to the almost total neglect of the philosophic and religious principles which ultimately determine the whole course of human existence.”

There has been, for the past fifteen years at least, a steady increase in the domination of the cult of objectivity in our teaching. No classroom, of course, ought now to be the place for propaganda, or for the presentation of the prejudiced point of view of the instructor. On the other hand, to blindly become the slave of an often times pseudo-scientific method which alleges that only proven facts are pertinent material for discussion and consideration tends to obscure the basic truth that there are things that are right and things that are wrong; that are ideas and ideals and values which are important, even though they may not be capable of scientific proof. This so-called objectivity is in part the cause of “the total neglect of the philosophic and religious principles that ultimately determine the whole course of human existence.”

Let me quote again, this time from Ordway Tead—a distinguished educator, scholar and writer. “There shouldn’t be ‘one truth’ but there needs to be a recognition of present intellectual and moral confusion, ethical neutrality and negativism, and spiritual nihilism.”

“And One For Johnny Ring” appeared in the fall issue of the Diamond of Psi Upsilon. The remarks are excerpts from an address given at the 1965 Psi Upsilon Fraternity’s convention banquet by A. Blair Knapp, President of Denison University.

Then there is the excessive specialization which characterizes higher education today, not only in the graduate schools, but even in Liberal Arts Colleges such as my own. A true story illustrates somewhat what I mean. A young history professor in a Liberal Arts College was discussing his field. He described it as the history of local government in southeastern France in the first half of the sixteenth century. This moved one of his colleagues to ask, tongue in cheek “Yes, but which decade?”

My own institution, a Liberal Arts College, is committed to the ideal of the inter-relationships of the disciplines, to the concept of the integration of the curriculum and to the principle of the synthesis of knowledge. Yet, even here, members of the faculty are literally torn apart between their devotion to their educational ideals on the one hand and the increasing pressure which grows constantly, not only to confine their scholarly work to one discipline, but increasingly to smaller and smaller sub-specialties within that discipline. It seems to me to be ironic that in this day, when so much progress is being made on the peripheries of two or more disciplines (bio-chemistry for example) that at this very time the content of our work is being fragmented to the point that any real integration of knowledge becomes increasingly difficult.

I read recently in a local paper what purported to be a true story. A businessman reached retirement age and, since his pension was small, chose a small college town in which to spend his retirement years, believing that he could find companionship with the faculty of the local institution. He reported that he was reasonably satisfied with his decision. The faculty were fine people but (and I quote) “of course most of them are not educated people, as is commonly believed. They are specialists, highly trained in some particular field, but not educated people, which is not so bad. If you want to talk about geology, invite a geology professor to dinner, but be sure to remember not to talk to him about anything else.”

Dangerous Trends

This trend toward complete dedication to one discipline to the exclusion of all else is having serious consequences in our colleges and universities. There is a companion trend, for which the managers of our institutions of higher learning must accept responsibility; namely, that promotion, either in rank or salary or both, is becoming increasingly determined by the linear length or pound weight of a man’s publications, with little or no consideration being given to teaching effectiveness and without very much concern about the quality, purpose or import of the publications themselves. These two trends are depreciating the quality of the teaching art in this country and are making a mockery of our lofty statements of educational purpose, especially at the undergraduate level.

There is another current phenomenon in higher education which, if not checked or moderated, will become an educational scandal. I refer to the hysterical competition between institutions for the presumably best qualified scholar in which the chief lure, in addition to a high salary, is an absurd reduction in teaching load. In many cases this top professor is spared the contamination of contact with any students at all. Please understand I appreciate the fact that research and publication are indeed important aspects of the function of higher education, but why must we let the older and still sound concept of the teacher-scholar go down the drain?

If these trends persist, I predict that higher education is in for real trouble and this nation which hopes, yes which expects so much, from the colleges and universities in terms of providing the quality of leadership so vital to the safety and welfare of this world will not only be sorely disappointed, but will be greatly disillusioned.

You, as students of our colleges and universities of stature, are being well trained for your chosen professions and endeavors. This is good, but it isn't good enough. All knowledge, all intellectual power is good, but of itself, it's not good enough. In knowledge alone there is as much power for evil as there is for good. Knowledge must be accompanied by something that will give direction and constructive purpose in its application.

World War II, with all of its horrors resulting in chaos through much of the world, chaos which is still with us, provides us with proof of this. By all objective standards, Germany was in the front rank in educational development. Scholars from around the world journeyed there for advanced training. Yet with all of this great educational achievement, an Adolph Hitler could with astonishing ease pervert the whole nation to the acceptance of false ideologies and to a course of action that was barbaric and utterly without moral foundation. Here was a nation with great educational stature. They had the knowledge, but they lacked the something else.

John Stone Dickey, the President of Dartmouth, puts it this way . . . "To create the power of competence without creating a corresponding sense of moral direction to guide the use of power, is bad education."

A celebrated anthropologist, Edward T. Hall, was talking about the same thing when he wrote "A future worth contemplating will not be achieved solely by flights to the other side of the moon. It will not be found in space. It will be achieved, if it is achieved at all, only in our individual hearts."

Thus I approach the heart of what I came here this evening to say. Perhaps now you begin to see what my concerns are about you and those like you throughout the land. You have a fine store of factual knowledge, technical skills, training for your chosen field of endeavor. But do you have this something else? My reason for citing some criticisms of higher education today is because I honestly feel that we in education have not helped you enough to acquire this something else. I am sure that some of you—perhaps many of you—have had individual teachers who have departed from the currently accepted emphasis of strict objectivity. You are fortunate indeed if this is the case. You have had some help in developing this something else. But I am equally sure that many of you are going to have "to go it alone." My one purpose this morning is to stress how desperately important it is that you do so.

This something else, as I see it, consists of a deep concern for, a deliberate commitment to, and responsible involvement in the great problems which threaten this nation internally, as in relation to other peoples in the world. These require that each of you must consciously evolve for yourself a philosophy and a faith by which you are going to be willing to lead your lives. Your God-given talents have been sharpened by your training here—you have three choices—you can use these talents and do your part to pull your full weight in these difficult and dangerous days; or you can "play it cool" and sit on the side-lines hoping that others will do more than their fair share to offset your aloofness and apathy; or thirdly, of course you can use your skills in a way which will compound the difficulties.

It is perfectly understandable that one of your first concerns is to establish your own families and to have an opportunity to lead your own lives with dignity and security for you and yours, but I submit that the security and dignity of your own depends far more than ever before on your concern, commitment, and responsible involvement in the larger problems of our day.

These great and difficult problems which face our country in the second half of this century are not to be quickly nor easily solved. There are those who would give us pat answers and would over-simplify the solutions. Hopefully, your training will guard you from falling into this trap.

Let us understand full well that solutions must be found, no matter how difficult they may be and no matter how long it may take. We Americans are by nature optimists. Our history is so relatively short, our progress so relatively great, our success so unprecedented in a materialistic sense, that we find it very difficult to understand that failure to solve these problems which I have mentioned can spell our downfall.

Perhaps it would be wise to stop and listen to Mr. Ralph Besse—Cleveland industrialist—speaking at Heidelberg College in 1957 when he said "China and Persia had cultures which matured and withered. Babylon and Carthage had civilizations which disappeared. Greece and Rome had golden ages which decayed. Spain and England had empires which disintegrated. Germany and Austria had scientific zeniths which exploded. And now the United States sits on a mountain top, complacent of her precarious balance, jealous of the material power which placed her there, and careless of the spiritual and intellectual power which alone can keep her there. If anyone is to see her peril and guard her lofty position, it must be her young men and women like yourselves—the college and university graduates of the second half of this century. This is your challenge, this is your opportunity, this is your solemn obligation. You must not fail."

I have talked about the something more than knowledge, know how, skill and competence that is essential if the outcome of your lives is to be socially, morally and civically significant. I referred to this "something that the minimum term of service is that training time (approximately eight months) plus two years active duty as an officer.

No one on the mobile teams or the teams at the recruiting offices is going to try and sell anybody on the idea the Army OCS program is a glamor job. But it is a job which needs to be done and a job which requires dedicated men who are not afraid of hard work and responsibility. As in all times of international stress, when there is a big job to do, it's the Army which is called upon to do it. The great fraternity of Army men who were called upon to serve their country when it really counted crosses all economic strata and social levels.

Whether a bank president or a small dirt farmer, only one "dogface" really understands another when they speak of the Army. Only a footsoldier can share with another the knowledge that when the chips are down, they send for the Army.

The first assignment after receiving a commission is to report to a command. It may be a troop command or staff position at battalion level. It also may be work in the special field the candidate chooses.

One of the things to remember, the recruiters emphasize, is that officers live well. Where ever an officer and his family may be stationed, there will be people of the same age and walks of life. There is the officers' club, the post exchange and the commissary. What's more, the Army provides the officer and his family with free medical care—making a salary go a long way.

Officer candidates will be trained at Fort Benning, Ga.; Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Knox, Ky.; Fort Belvoir, Va.; and Fort Gordon, Ga.

Meanwhile, says the OCS officers who have organized the mobile information teams, check with your local college authorities to see when the teams are due on your campus.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This article on The United States Army Officer Candidate School Procurement Program was furnished by the United States Army Recruiting Command and is featured both as a public service and to bring current information to our undergraduate members on their military obligation.)

Chapter News

Fraternities pledged 41.87% of the first year class, a continuation of last years success, indicating that the system had stopped its "down hill trend". Sixteen freshmen and three second year men constitute our pledge class. Ken Ellison directed the rush program, and reports that the many alumni recommendations were most welcome.

Individual achievements are many: Mike Wolfe is vice-president of the two college political societies, David Dando was initiated into Theta Tau, national engineering fraternity, "Chuck" Carroll is wrestling, Jeff Johnson is a varsity swimmer, Stuart Stone is on the soccer team.

William M. Mettler, III, Zeta

Gamma of Chi Phi began its ninety-sixth year with Emory by pledging an excellent class of twenty-five boys. An active spring and summer rush program insured the quality and quantity of the pledge class. A new pledge training program paid off, for Gamma pledges ranked second in scholarship for fall quarter. Along with this, they have undertaken an ambitious project of renovating the living room of Tom Connally Hall. Gamma brothers, both actives and alumni, can look with pride at this pledge class. Further rushing efforts have added three more pledges to our list.

Sports are looking up, also, as the soccer team remains unscored upon; and the basketball team appears to be building up steam. Prospects look good for the softball team, which finished in the Championship flight last spring, and which will have lost only two starting players.

Through the earnest efforts of such men as the new president of Gamma Trust, William F. Morgan, Gamma Chapter is building for a strong future. We sincerely appreciate all that this group has done for us, especially in regards to rush.

The basement area has been completely remodeled and is now a center of pride for all. The project was made possible through the financial assistance of Brother Lawrence Earle's parents and the hard work of all the brothers.

Early in December Brother Kenneth Angleman '23 was presented a plaque commemorating his many years of faithful service to the Delta of Chi Phi Association. Bob Morris '50 made the presentation.

Brian D. Clase, Zeta

ETA

Eta chapter returned to its chapter house at the beginning of the Winter quarter. The house was occupied by Lambda Chi Alpha during the fall quarter.

The first floor and front exterior of the house was painted prior to the reopening.

Freshmen rushing is now deferred to the first two weeks of the winter quarter. We are happy to report the pledging of nineteen freshmen.

The chapter is once again operating at full strength. The chapter house is fully occupied with brothers and pledges.

Harold B. Jones, Alpha

LAMBDA

It's been so long now that a Zeta's report from Lambda has been sent to the Chakett, I feel as if I'm breaking a tradition, but beginning three years ago, gaining momentum during the last three years, and finally emerging this year is a new dynamic concept of the Lambda Chapter. The brothers are no longer content to sit back and "watch the world go by." Over the summer the merits of our former cook, who had been with us almost twenty years giving us faithful service, were finally realized and we retired him with no ill feelings. The new cook is one of the best on the campus; now the members show up in force for meals and even the alumni board arrives on time for dinner. This might seem a small point, but it has been found that member satisfaction with the chapter and desire to see the chapter grow in power, prestige, etc. is a function of the quality of the food (and of course many other things).

Lambda had a very successful rush (we have a full house) this fall semester even with the reduced number of men going through rush (down over 20% from last year due mainly to the extracurricular political activities that have been going on for the last year here at Berkeley). It seems people have given these goings on much more importance than is due. The community here is so diverse; only twelve of those 800 plus arrested were Greek. We hope none of these events will prevent alumni of Chi Phi from sending their children to Berkeley, and we welcome any and all recommendations for future Lambdas.

An indication of the new attitude of the house was seen in our participation in Big Game (Stanford vs. Cal.) activities. We got together with the Kappa's and presented a three-act skit for the Axe Review, a competitive variety show. Our weeks of practice brought out the fine acting talent in pledge Larry Miller and active Terry Ryder, and the adept directing and script of senior Scott Wild (Scott deserves much of the credit) earned us a second place in the competition. Our Big Game Queen candidate was selected to the queen's court. Considering the lack of participation in such activities in recent years, the active chapter and alumni are very pleased and look forward to continuous participation in university activities in the future.

Peyton Carr, Zeta

MU

The year opened with the initiation of 21 Brothers. The chapter had the largest spring class of the ten fraternities.

The Stevens rush rules have been changed to allow fall contact with freshmen prior to the usual spring contact and rush.

The addition of so many new brothers and the prospect of another good rushing season has projected the idea of enlarging the house a little to accommodate more people. Discussion of this topic with our Alumni Association has occurred, but nothing definite is expected to be accomplished until the school makes clear its position to the fraternities concerning a new piece of land purchased from Hoboken by the school for future expansion.

Just recently Mu held a Mother's Club meeting and the turn out was an exceptionally good one. It is hoped that through such meetings the parents of the Brothers will get to know each other as well as the other Brothers in the house and at the same time provide a basis of parental assistance as the Mother's Club has done in the past.

OMEGA

The Omega chapter started the year off well with a large pledge class of 28. The chapter placed third in the annual homecoming display contest, competing with 25 other fraternities.

Dick Wigh '66, past Alpha of the chapter was elected to Who's Who of American College Campuses this fall quarter.

The Omega Trust, now under the leadership of Brother Pat Story, has announced a fund-raising campaign for a new house. The move was necessitated by the Tech expansion program which contemplates the moving of Chi Phi and several other fraternity houses so that extra classroom facilities could be added on campus.

Dick Huber, Zeta

THETA DELTA

Fall rush resulted in a pledge class of 29. This is our largest pledge class in several years and shows much promise for the future. Our calendar this year has included Homecoming, the annual alumni association meeting, a banquet for sorority pledge class presidents sponsored by our pledges, the usual run of dinners and socials, and the Annual Christmas Dinner and party at which Mrs. Dorothy Langdon the house mother was honored.

During the fall we initiated a number of pledges from the F. S. U. Colony and look forward to initiating their fall pledge class during the winter quarter.

Dave Okula, Zeta

IOTA DELTA

The Parents Club donated wall to wall carpet for the living room at their December meeting. The present living room carpet will be rebound and installed in the Library.

Thanks to Dad Van Tobel the library was paneled during the Christmas recess. Dad Runis donated a baby grand piano to the chapter with the understanding the chapter would cover the shipping charges.

The chapter council and the Iota Delta alumni board met during the fall and established a state wide regional rush program. The financial report for the first two months as released by the Brother Doster, Alumni treasurer, showed continued favorable operations.

John F. Phillips, Zeta

EPSILON DELTA

This year under the leadership of our rush-chairman Ron Izatt we pledged 32 fine men during fall rush. The chapter house which has a capacity of 68 men is filled and we presently have 72 men living in with many brothers living out.

This year we were very happy to welcome our new house mother, Mrs. Bea Parret, after the retirement of Mrs. Edna Salmons who had been with Epsilon Delta for the past 17 years.

This fall through the help of our alumni the house was painted and re-roofed. Earlier in the summer a much needed patio was added to the chapter house and should be very useful this year.

Many Chi Phi's, particularly pledges, are active on campus and in athletics. We are represented on the varsity wrestling team by Dave Davis. Mickey Furlong and Doug Davis are wrestling for the rooks. Varsity swimmers this year are Ben Faus and John Schneider. Swimming for the rooks is Ron Furguson. Doug O'Conner is a member of varsity crew. Rob Roder and John Shook are out for track.

Brother Theron Bone is a member of Scabbard and Blade, and is a naval cadet officer with Brothers Bill Moir and Bill Beith. Brother Pete Mulder is an army cadet officer.

Pledge Don Brady was one of the five finalist for the "Joe College" award. Brother Bill Beith is Senior class treasurer. Brother Paul Schaber is student body Parliamentarian. Stuart Lamb, from the Union of South Africa, was recently elected our new Alpha.

Mike Wilkes, Zeta

RHO IOTA KAPPA

In September, 1964 the Rho Iota Kappa Chapter of Chi Phi at the University of Rhode Island opened its $50,000 addition, increasing its capacity from 30 to 45. The work was begun in May, 1964 and was virtually completed by the fall.

The addition includes six new study rooms, new men's and ladies' lavatory facilities, a library, a new dining room, and extensions to the social room and sleeping area. The addition has resulted in the purchase of $1500 worth of furniture for the social room and $850 in new carpeting. New desks and room supplies have also been procured, thus nearly completing the interior furnishings.

After opening the Chapter house for the fall semester, 1965, the Brotherhood undertook to improve the exterior. The physical plant has already seen the addition of a new lawn, extensive landscaping and an enlargement of parking facilities, all at a cost of approximately $750.

Another innovation which Rho Iota Kappa Chapter undertook in September, 1965 was membership in the Fraternity Manager's Association. This organization is new to the university as well. It is a system of cooperative buying for fraternities and will save approximately 10% of the original expenses per year. These savings appear in food, fuel, and house supply bills.

Within the past few weeks, Brother Anthony Esser, '67, has begun fabrication of a 4' x 4' replica of the Chi Phi Brotherhood Badge. Upon completion, this will become permanently fixed to the front exterior of the Chapter house.

In light of these past improvements and additions and of future plans as well, the Chi Phi Chapter at the University of Rhode Island continues to grow. We are proud of this progress and we are certain that we will remain a prominent figure among fraternities at U. R. I.

KAPPA DELTA

The presentation of the charter to the Chi Phi Colony at Rochester was held Saturday afternoon, February 5, 1966. The charter was presented to the Alpha Charles Barnhart by the Grand Alpha, Joseph R. Dockery.

A banquet and dance was held at a local club following the installation. The guest list included the national Chi Phi officers, two brothers from each of the ten nearest chapters, representatives of the Dean of Students and presidents of other fraternities on campus.

This semester's pledge class numbers 15 men. Their informal initiation period will be during intersession late in January. As in the past, their activities will include maintenance work in the Rochester city settlement houses and certain other "constructive exercises."

more" in terms of concern, commitment, and responsible involvement in affairs beyond those of self.

Concern will manifest itself when you realize in your mind and heart that in a true sense in this world, which grows increasingly smaller year by year in terms of time and distance, we each are our brother's keeper. Concern for others—concern for the unsolved problems of our day—will come as a function of maturity and with an intellectual comprehension of the consequences of apathy and disinterest.

Responsible Involvement

Responsible involvement is perhaps the most difficult. Simple involvement is easy—responsible involvement is quite a different matter. It is easy enough to sign a petition—to parade on a picket line—to wave a banner in a protest meeting. Perhaps my prejudices are showing, but it seems to me this sort of thing is pretty superficial. I doubt very much that such activity contributes anything of lasting value to the solutions of tough problems. Responsible involvement begins, it seems to me, with the individual by himself, if he has concern and determines to commit himself—the first step is an intellectual one of determining the facts and sorting out the details of the problem and the alternative proposals for its solution—then the time-worn methods of discussion, persuasion, and political action become the basis for most responsible involvement. Organizations such as the Peace Corps, which has been astonishingly successful in a short time, offer responsible involvement for others.

It is not my purpose to spell out the specific terms or involvement that you will find significant for you. I wish only to try to reach you with the message which I so thoroughly believe to be true in our time that for you to be concerned, committed and responsibly involved at some point and soon is the great need of America and the world.

"One for Johnny Ring"

Perhaps in closing I can best sum it all up with a true story. Before becoming President of Denison, I was Vice-President of Temple University in Philadelphia. This, today, is a huge institution. It was founded a few decades ago by Dr. Russell Conwell, who invited six students to meet with him three times a week in the evening. Dr. Conwell was a famous lecturer and his most famous lecture was "Acres of Diamonds." He delivered this same lecture thousands of times throughout the world, receiving millions in lecture fees, all of which were devoted to the building of Temple University.

Dr. Conwell was probably the first citizen of Philadelphia in his time. Every effort for community development would find Dr. Conwell in a position of leadership and responsibility. One day a friend and admirer was visiting in his home. The friend turned to Dr. Conwell and asked "How can you do so much for others—so much for the community?"

Dr. Conwell took his friend into his study and pointed to the wall behind his desk on which was hung a dress sword of Civil War vintage. Then he replied to the question "When I was a young man I was a junior officer in the Union Army. As was the custom then, I took with me to war a young boy as orderly: Johnny Ring. My fellow townspeople gave me this sword when I left home. It was Johnny's pride and joy to care for my sword and to keep it shining bright. One day when I was absent, the Confederates attacked our camp. The Union troops—Johnny Ring with them, retreated across the river on a railroad trestle. When he got to the other side, Johnny realized that he had forgotten my sword, which was hanging in my tent. Johnny went back across the trestle—secured the sword and sought to recross the river, but by that time the bridge was on fire and he couldn't make it. Soldiers on both sides saw his plight—both sides stopped firing and shouted to him to jump into the river. He did, but his clothes were on fire and he was burned so badly that he died two days later." Dr. Conwell then turned to his questioner and said "You see, Johnny Ring gave his life as a sacrifice to his concept of duty and his idea of service to me. Therefore, I must live two lives, one for myself and one for Johnny Ring." My young friends, we all have our Johnny Rings. Each of you has a Johnny Ring somewhere in your life. Each of us must live two lives too, one for ourselves and one for our fellow men.
